Pedestrians Injured In Sidewalk Tumbles

BY DAVID BROWN

Heavy, water-logged snow continued to blanket southern Vancouver Island early today, but the fall was expected to dimish to flurries of mixed rain and snow later in the morning.

The season's second big snowfall dumped more than seven inches of snow on Victoria, from 10 to 14 inches in areas just north of the city, bringing traffic to a slithering halt on even light grades, causing a rash of fender-crinkling mishaps and local power and communications disruptions.

The storm was a turn-about for Victoria, which missed the heavy blizzards of a fortnight ago that pelted most up-Island points.

Most Island east coast centres last night had only a sprinkle of new snow added to the remains of the previous storms. But the new fall was enough to make roads slick. There were a few minor accidents but no injuries reported.

MUCH MILDER

Unlike the crippling blizzard which rode the tails of sub-freezing northerly winds Dec. 4, yesterday's 12-hour storm was rain in snow's clothing, turning to slush as it became packed down.

Temperature flirted with the freezing mark throughout the day and night—melting, freezing and melting again in the span of an hour.

Driving became treacherous as the snow piled up in streets. Police traffic units and towing trucks maintained a feverish pace to keep up with the more than two dozen minor accidents in areas south of the Malahat. Up to midnight, there were no injuries.

Most of the storm casualties were pedestrians who suffered on slippery sidewalks. In a two-hour period there were half a dozen cases of gashed heads, broken collarbones and hip bones admitted at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

UNPREPARED

Home-bound motorists, carrying little snow equipment for the unheralded storm, skidded and stalled on scores of hills in the Greater Victoria area, blocking the way for hundreds of other motorists.

City Engineer J. C. Garnett said salting crews were sent out at 2 p.m. and many streets were salted twice in a six-hour period.

The engineer promised to dispatch graders "if the snow continues to pile up," adding that "no problems" were anticipated.

Motorists caught with their chains off were also responsible for a large-scale jam-up on the Malahat, making the mountainous route impassable for more than an hour at a time.

Highways department crews started work with graders at 4 p.m. to clear a trough in the snow, but sanding trucks were kept in garages because of the continuing fall which would have covered sand as fast as it was thrown to the road surface.

BUSES DELAYED

Vancouver Island Coach Lines buses on Island Highway runs were delayed from one to 1½ hours by the Malahat blockade.

Downtown, a B.C. Electric official said that urban bus schedules were "thrown away" during the rush hour because of blocked hills. All buses continued to run from one end of their routes to the other when they could. "We hope passengers will understand," said the harassed official.

The same official said the B.C. Electric offices were flooded with calls throughout the evening as the heavy snow snapped local power lines, shorted on others and threw some districts into darkness.

Residents in the Lansdowne, Cadboro Bay and Ten Mile Point areas were without power for most of the time between 7.30 and 11 p.m. because of shorted lines.

OFF THE AIR

The failure also knocked off the air both Victoria radio stations, CKDA and CJVI, for 30-minute periods.

Standby crews rushed to restore services. No main transmission lines were affected.

Local telephone service was also disrupted at intervals around Victoria when lines snapped.

It was one of the dullest Saturday nights in ages for downtown proprietors of beer parlors, cocktail lounges, restaurants and movie theatres. Clientele was estimated at one-half normal.

The storm failed to affect air transportation despite a reported fall of six inches of "fairly light" snow. Runways were kept clear and all TCA flights were reported leaving and arriving on schedule.

North of the Malahat, Duncan reported four to five inches of new snow last night, but the fall had diminished considerably by midnight. Roads were described as very slippery.

SIX INCHES

Six new inches of snow were added by the storm to 1½ feet already on the ground at Cowichan. Only one minor accident was reported.

Don't shoot the weatherman—he's doing his best! Chief forecaster William Mackie, shown in the happy old days of "sure-thing" forecasts, last night scanned charts and instruments in a vain attempt to come up with something concrete for the residents. The outlook: unsettled.

Russia, China . . . . . . Weld Cracks

New 'Hate U.S.' Drive Mounted

Stalinist Gambit Hits at Mid-East

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia and Red China are mounting a new hate campaign against the United States. It is aimed at rallying the divided Soviet Communist world against a common "enemy" and at discrediting U.S. aims in the Middle East.

This evident revival of the old Stalinist trick of concentrating attention on a foreign foe to overcome or cover up internal troubles is dramatized in the communique just issued by Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Premier Chou En-lai of Red China.

It underscores the great difficulties with which the Red leaders are faced in their own sphere, U.S. officials agreed yesterday. It also spotlights the intensified conflict between the United States and the Soviet bloc which has developed in the closing months of the first Eisenhower administration and which fixes the major foreign policy concern of the President as he opens his second term in the White House.

U.S. ATTACKED

The statement issued by Bulganin and Chou in Moscow Friday night attacked U. S. policies in the Middle East and elsewhere over the world. It denounced this country as a colonial power and accused it of generating fresh tensions in the world while rebuffing Russian and Chinese overtures for "peaceful coexistence."

The communique was relatively free of the kind of violent invective which characterized the attacks of the Stalin days. But the revival of the image of the United States and particularly American "monopoly" as the foe of what the Communists call peace and progress is at the heart of the statement.

How effective all this will be for the Communist cause is questionable. Poland, for example, is having parliamentary elections on Sunday. The Soviet Communists are so hated and discredited there that even U.S. officials have feared dangerous new gestures of Polish independence which could bring repressive measures comparable to those the Reds applied in Hungary.

KEENLY INTERESTED

Administration leaders were keenly interested in comments from Capitol Hill that the tough tone of the Moscow communique made it important for Congress to grant President Eisenhower the military and economic authority he has asked for dealing with the Middle East situation.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice-President Nixon plunged yesterday into the forefront of the fight for the Eisenhower Middle East policy. He said the latest Communist blast against it dramatically underscores the need for leaving "no vacuum" in the strategic Mideast area.

Nixon and other administration leaders felt the Eisenhower resolution got a big boost, rather than a setback, when Soviet Russia and Red China condemned it. The Red leaders voted to give Middle Eastern nations "any necessary support" against "aggression" or interference in their affairs.

THROW IN SPONGE

Some congressional critics of the Eisenhower plan indicated they were about ready to throw in the sponge. Administration leaders' hopes rose for a whopping vote of approval when Congress votes on the resolution.

The resolution would empower President Eisenhower to use military force, if he deemed necessary, to combat any overt Communist aggression in the Middle East.

A-Bomb Speed Drop Set?

WASHINGTON (AP) — New tests of tactical-size atomic bombs are being considered for the next series of experiments at the government's Nevada proving ground.

These tests, if they develop, may include the first drop of a nuclear weapon from a faster-than-sound jet fighter-bomber.

This report seemed to be in line with a statement made by President Eisenhower in his budget message last Wednesday. He told Congress that in nuclear armament "emphasis will be placed on weapons for tactical purposes with reduced radioactive fallout."

The Atomic Energy Commission up to now has made no official announcement of plans for any new series of tests at its Nevada proving grounds near Las Vegas.

However, there have been reports that preparations were under way for a series in the spring involving smaller weapon designs in the kiloton—thousands of tons—force range.

Breaks Ice

First ranking Briton to be invited to U.S. since the Suez crisis, British Defence Minister Duncan Sandys will meet U.S. officials in Washington Jan. 28, for talks on joint defence matters.

Executed

Executed yesterday for taking leading role in Hungarian uprising, Janos Szabo (above) paid supreme penalty alongside his revolutionary chief, Jozef Dudas. The two men headed the all-Hungary revolutionary council during the patriotic revolt last October.

Warns Voters

Poland's iron man, Wladyslaw Gomulka, warned voters last night that if they cross Communist candidates off ballot papers in today's elections it means, "crossing Poland off map of Europe." Vote is first since Polish riots paved way for policy of so-called "communism without tyranny."

Crashes Plane Thief Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—A 20-year-old mechanic's helper sneaked a two-engine plane from Idlewild Airport last night, flew 200 feet into the air, then crashed to his death.

The body of Allen Adler, of Brooklyn, was flung about 30 feet from the plane as it crashed. The plane, worth about $100,000 was described as a total loss.

Adler was employed by Pan American World Airways, and the plane was a DC-3 used only for training flights.

Idlewild tower noticed a plane taxiing in the hangar area, and after querying the pilot, cleared him to the runway.

The plane went about 800 feet down the runway, lifted into a steep climb to about 200 feet, then crashed.

Damper Put On Algiers

ALGIERS (UP) — French authorities put Algiers, Oran and Constantine under a virtual state of siege yesterday on the eve of an announced general strike by Algeria's 8,300,000 Moslems to mark the start of the United Nations debate on Algeria.

Hatchets Lunatics Seize Families

LONDON (AP) — Two escaped criminal lunatics last night terrorized rural Nottingham of Robin Hood fame.

The two lunatics broke into two homes, battered a man with an iron bar, and gorged on food as they listened to news broadcasts about their escape.

The victim of the beating and his wife were held prisoners for three agonizing hours before the two men left.

Then the two turned up at another house several miles away. Each was now armed with a hatchet.

"Don't do anything to annoy us," the men warned.

Pup Survives Air Crash

SEATTLE (AP)—Hours after a big Navy transport plane crash-landed here Saturday and the 46 known passengers and crewmen had been removed alive, a 47th passenger was found in the wreckage. Huddled under a seat of the broken plane, cowering and shivering was a puppy, about five weeks old. It was unhurt.

Weather Outlook: In a Word, Unsettled

The snow may stay, but then again it may not.

It's going to get a bit colder, but, of course, it just might turn a little milder.

This isn't the official forecast from the weatherman, but it summarizes the possibilities raised on the weather office charts. In a word, unsettled.

Factors not adhering closely to the script are a low-pressure area, currently sinking southward off the coast of Washington. Its presence brought yesterday's snowfall by overlapping a cold air front defending the Interior—right over Victoria.

WARM BREEZES?

The mild air storm centre was expected to sit where it is, allowing some warm breezes to blow in on Victoria and melt the wet snow with chill rain. But if it continues to go south, the cold air from the Interior may be dragged back into the picture.

Whatever the precipitation in the next day may be, it will be light. While Victoria continues to sit on the weather fence, no more than snow flurries or mixed snow and rain are expected.

In original planning for the mild air to stay, temperatures of 40 degrees were forecast for today, with showers on Monday.

Langford Fire Burns Kitchen

Fire caused considerable damage to the kitchen at the residence of John Drury, 1189 Goldstream, Langford, late last night.

The blaze is believed to have started from the chimney.

First of Sex?

Rumored choice as Canada's first woman cabinet minister, Mrs. Ann Shipley of Ontario is believed likely to fill coming vacancy caused by pending retirement of mines minister George Prudham which was announced yesterday.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

PEOPLE at the bus stop hunch themselves into their coats. The snow is coming down in big, wet flakes. Every now and then a strip of snow falls off a wire or a sign and flops on the sidewalk.

A girl with a scarf tied over her head [illegible] into a shop door. She looks up the street in that stiff, scared way that some people have when it is snowing—as though she was afraid her bones would break if she moved too suddenly.

But her eyes move sideways to inspect the others at the bus stop—large, brown female eyes that look warm under her snowy scarf. Flakes settle on her eyebrows. She senses a man looking at her, and assumes a blank expression, turning the eyes up the street where the bus should be.

Two lads in mackinaws are throwing snowballs at each other, shouting insults in voices that waver from soprano to tenor.

They wind up elaborately for each throw, consciously showing off, trying to make a small entertainment for a group of teen-aged girls, who are not taking much notice.

Another lad joins in, a rangy youth in a brown jacket, who fires a barrage of snowballs, dodges around a lamppost and peers from behind it with bird-like eagerness, then launches into a loose-limbed sliding run and pushes a companion in the gutter.

A smaller boy is amusing himself by packing snowballs, tossing them in the air and trying to make them land on his head. "Look, Mummy," he says.

His mother, an anxious woman with a creased face, gives him an encouraging smile. But she is chiefly concerned to keep her sodden parcels from falling to pieces.

A young couple, all bundled up except for their bare hands, which are twined together, look in a jeweler's window. A chilled-looking paper boy, nursing a couple of newspapers which are soaking wet and surely unsaleable, utters a series of odd cries, which sound like: "Reedeem! Ruxy! Reedop!"

A bus draws up. It seems to be the one that most of the people are waiting for. They plod and slither up to the door. The rangy lad in the brown jacket flings a last snowball, and manages to lose his dime in the process.

The other people file into the bus, a warm haven on wheels. The lad in the brown jacket miraculously grubs in the snow and recovers his coin, jumps up the steps, and the bus rumbles away into the night.

Macmillan Gets Dressed Down

LONDON (Reuters)—Two leading British tailors' weeklies disagreed yesterday about Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's choice of clothes.

The Outfitter said that if the British prime minister "carries on in his new duties with the lack of regard for clothes as he has started off, he might well achieve some measure of notoriety as an opposite to the well - dressed man."

Macmillan's choice of "striped morning trousers with a double breasted striped town jacket" and "a pullover and a rumpled soft collared shirt" to preside over his first cabinet meeting came under the outfitter's fire.

"One is tempted to ask if this sort of thing is to be known as cabinet dress, like cabinet pudding which is a horrible mixture," the weekly said.

The Outfitter credited him with one asset: "He looks at all times neat and tidy."

Tailor and Cutter, however, came to the prime minister's defence. In a brief comment the weekly recalled that Macmillan had, like Sir Anthony Eden, figured in its annual list of best-dressed men three years ago.

Leaves 300 Wives Behind

King to Travel Solo

By SOLOMON STECKOLL
North American Newspaper Alliance

JERUSALEM — King Saud of Saudi Arabia has decided to leave all of his more than 300 wives at home when he visits Washington this week.

King Saud, one of the last absolute monarchs, took 22 of his favorite wives with him on a recent state visit to India, but on advice of his Washington advisers he agreed to travel alone rather than offend Western customs.

The bearded desert ruler keeps his harem in a luxurious palace at Riadh which was specially built after he came into power three years ago. Furnished in luxury reminiscent of Haroun El Rashid, his court retains many Arabian Nights' touches.

An autocratic ruler who follows the law of the Koran scrupulously, Saud legally has only four wives—the maximum number permitted by Moslem law. The other women in his harem are former wives and concubines who were given him as tributes by tribal sheikhs—tributes which, for political reasons, he cannot refuse.

As the divorce procedure for men in Arabia is simple, whenever the king wants to re-marry all that he has to do is to divorce one of his wives, and keep her on in the harem. All that is necessary for this is to say three times, "I divorce thee" and it's all over.

One of the richest rulers in the world, the $150,000,000 oil royalties paid annually by the American Oil Company (Aramco) go into his personal coffers. Saudi Arabia contains one-sixth of the world's oil reserves.

When his father, Ibn Saud, died, a harem of more than 500 became the personal property of the new king who sent them all home to their families and built up a new harem with girls of his own choosing. It is set in the dusty town of Riadh where a tropical garden has been laid out—with palms and fountains. Exotic fishes are kept in pools in the inner courtyard.

Nobody is allowed to enter the closely guarded building. Whenever any of his wives goes on an outing, curtains are carefully drawn on the car's windows so that she cannot be seen by any stranger. When guests are entertained at the palace the rule that male guests may not see any of the women, is strictly enforced.

Restrictions on the 3,000 Americans employed by Aramco at the Dhahran oil fields are maintained in line with the harsh codes practised in the country.

No alcohol may be imported into Saudi Arabia and the oilmen often fly to near-by Bahrein to have a drink. All work stops on Fridays, the Moslem sabbath and three times a day work ceases while the Moslem workers down tools to turn to Mecca for traditional prayers. When church services or dances are held by the Americans, they are contravening the law of the country.

Medieval forms of punishment are still meted out to criminals. The punishment for a thief is that his hand be cut off in public and then hoisted on a flag-pole as an example to others. The only concession to progress is that doctors are now allowed to treat the man after sentence has been carried out.

In cases of adultery, considered the most heinous crime in Arabia, the parties concerned are placed in a bag which is liberally sprinkled with kerosene. This is then set alight and thrown from the highest building in town.

Slavery is still openly practised in Saudi Arabia where a tenth of the population are slaves. Open slave markets flourish in the holy cities of Mecca and Medina while in Djedda and other towns where foreigners are allowed, slaves are bought and sold through middlemen. King Saud recently refused to allow a commission of enquiry of the United Nations to enter his country in order to investigate the slave traffic there.

Prices range from $50 to $150 for a male slave and average $200 for a girl slave who invariably is bought to complement the harems of the rich sheiks in the kingdom.

CAIRO (UP) — Saudi Arabian Defence Minister Emir Fahad Ibn Saud indicated yesterday that Saudi Arabia would seek arms from the United Statee during the coming visit of King Saud.

Garden Notes

Overwatering Common Error

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Cut Leaf Philodendron—(A. B.S., Victoria). You are indeed fortunate to receive such a wonderful plant as a Christmas gift, and with proper care it should provide you with companionship for many years.

A plant fresh from the florist shouldn't need repotting for two years, so you needn't worry about this for a while. Give it lots of light but not much direct sunshine, for in nature these plants grew in the depths of the South American forest. An east or a north window should be ideal provided there are no drafts.

NO SCHEDULE

Don't water on any kind of a fixed schedule, as overwatering is the most common cause of failure with houseplants. Wait until the plant needs water, testing the soil as you would a cake in the oven, with a toothpick or a broom straw, then give enough to saturate the soil as shown by water coming out the hole in the bottom. Allow the pot to drain thoroughly, then empty the excess water in the saucer. Use rain water or the defrostings from your refrigerator rather than tap water.

Feed your plant once a month with a soluble fertilizer such as Liqui-Life, Folium, Instant Vigoro, etc., giving half a teaspoonful in a pint of water. Sponge the leaves weekly with warm soapy water.

Holly Cuttings—(E. P., Esquimalt) — The best time to take and root holly cuttings is the period from August to December. Holly is a rather difficult subject to root outdoors, and for best results the cuttings should be housed in a greenhouse or a coldframe equipped with a soil-heating cable to give a bottom heat around 60 degrees.

A mixture of equal parts peat moss and coarse sand makes a good rooting medium, and it pays to dip the ends of the cuttings in a hormone rooting powder such as Rootone, Hormonex, or Thompson's Ree-Root No. 2.

Flame Violet (R. H., Alberni) — The Episcia or Flame Violet is even easier to propagate than the African Violet, for these plants produce creeping stolons, rather like the runners from a strawberry plant, but from further up the stem. These can be "layered" into a nearby pot of soil, or simply detached from the parent plant and stuck into a pot of sandy soil, where they root with the greatest of ease.

The Episcia is a very attractive houseplant, with scarlet flowers and far more interesting foliage than the African violet. As it is from the tropical forests of Nicaragua, it likes lots of heat, and while it appreciates plenty of water, it is singularly tolerant of neglect in this respect.

Ground Cover for Rose Bed—(J.K.R., Victoria.) I can understand and sympathize with your desire for a change from pansies as a ground cover under your rose bushes, but I am not particularly in favor of growing any other plants at all in a rose bed. It seems to me that these interfere with the routine cultivation of the bed and make it impossible to spread a good thick mulch over the rose roots through the summer months.

However, if you feel you should have some color between your bushes, you could use any of the dwarf annuals such as Lobelia, Phacelia, Alyssum, Limnanthes (the Poached Egg Flower) and Kirkwell asters.

Home to Be Raised As Winch Memorial

Plan to establish a public fund to raise money for an additional unit for New Vista Homes for the Aged in Burnaby as a memorial to the founder, the late Ernest Winch, was endorsed by Saanich CCF Constituency Association Friday.

The annual meeting observed a minute of silence for the memory of the veteran CCF MLA who died last week, and Alf Kellow, pioneer socialist and CCF supporter in the Saanich area who died early this year.

Frank Snowsell was elected president of the association for 1957 at the meeting in Douglas CCF hall.

Other officers elected were A. J. Rhodes, vice-president; James Lancaster, education; and N. P. Finnemore, membership.

Secretary-treasurer will be appointed at the executive's first constituency meeting Feb. 1.

Mrs. J. M. Thomas spoke on the work done by the CCF Women's Council, which will cater for the annual CCF MLA's dinner in Douglas Hall Feb. 15.

Knife Suicide

'Intelligent' Man Hacks Wife, Dies

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—An "immensely intelligent" man went berserk Saturday, critically wounded his wife with a hatchet and killed himself by thrusting a carving knife into his throat.

Victims of the sudden burst of rage were Robert E. Fenske, 39, a U. S. Forest Service accountant, and his wife, Margaret, 35, both graduates of the Augustana College and Theological Seminary at Rock Island, Ill.

Mrs. Fenske was slashed on the head and right arm.

Lance Fenske, 12, heard his mother scream shortly after the Fenskes arose this morning. Coroner Paul B. Jensen quoted the child:

"Daddy was holding mommy and hitting her on the head with a hatchet. I hit daddy in the back and said 'leave mother alone.' Daddy came after me."

Lance ran from the house and returned by another door, to find the blood-covered body of his father lying on the living room floor, and his mother locked in the bathroom.

His brothers, Mark, 8, and Eric, 1, were huddled in their bedroom.

Robert Boynton, a neighbor and long time friend, said Fenske had told him he feared losing his job with the Forest Service.

The Fenskes were married in 1943.

Coroner Jensen said Joseph Hoare, Mrs. Fenske's brother, gave him this description of his brother-in-law:

"He had the most enormous inferiority complex I ever saw. But he was immensely intelligent."

Brothers Planning Polio Spade-Work

young Beaver Lake will put their full h behind the Kins- polio fund drive

Tom Hamer, 12, and his brother Sandy, 9, will be out shoveling snow for residents of the area behind Beaver Lake, and they plan to donate all the money they receive to the polio fund.

The brothers hope to round up many of their friends to help in the work and urged that other young boys do the same.

Donations to the fund can be sent to Room 7, 710 Johnson Street.

The month-long polio fund drive will culminate in a one-hour blitz by more than 3,000 "marching mothers" on Greater Victoria homes Feb. 16.

The B.C. Polio Fund, sponsored by Kinsmen Clubs of the province, is campaigning for $400,000.

Officials say $150,000 is needed to continue the polio care program started by the Kinsmen in 1951.

The rest will be for launching a new child rehabilitation program, $150,000 for a children's rehabilitation centre, $50,000 to help establish a school of rehabilitation at UBC, and $50,000 for immediate remedial aid for children in centres already established.

The Vic-Van Isle and Sidney Kinsmen Clubs are sponsoring a drive which will see the area split into 36 districts and every house canvassed by a "marching mother" between 6.30 and 7.30 p.m. Feb. 16 in a "porchlight drive."

Women canvassers are needed. Number to phone, at any time of the day or night, is 5-4489, the Polio Fund headquarters at 710 Johnson.

Refused Dual Job

SPCA Ousts 'Disobedient' Shelter Chief

Disagreement over the operation of the SPCA's shelter in Victoria has resulted in the dismissal of inspector Cyril McRoberts.

He will be replaced by a "fully trained inspector" from Vancouver, the sixth man to hold the position in approximately as many years.

Mr. McRoberts was given two weeks' notice Friday in a letter signed by the president of the Victoria SPCA branch, William Leach.

Reason given for the dismissal was the failure of Mr. McRoberts to agree to taking over the operation of the Esquimalt pound, using the present facilities of the SPCA shelter at 111 Wilson.

Mr. McRoberts said he refused to accept the extra job because inspecting is a full-time task and the present facilities are inadequate to operate a pound as well as a shelter.

Two or three dogs are now being kept in each of some 12 pens, and this is sufficient, Mr. McRoberts said.

"Others consider four or five is quite okay. I might be wrong, but we have happy dogs up here. I wouldn't want to be in charge if it was to be changed."

Overcrowding, he said, could only be overcome by destroying the spare dogs or building additional accommodation.

GETS SUPPORT

Ted Hayward, inspector until last June when he resigned due to "strain and stress of working conditions," supported Mr. McRoberts.

John Kirk, kennel man at the shelter, said the SPCA committee's original plan was to purchase a second truck and hire another man to take care of Esquimalt's pound duties.

"Now, Mr. McRoberts is going," Mr. Kirk said, "we can forget some of the silly ideas he has been trying to introduce and return to our proper function of raising money. After all, the president says there is no place for sentiment in any organization."

Mr. McRoberts said that emergency calls to animals in distress and inspection work kept him busy.

Regular calls, he said, should be made to kennels, stables, farms, slaughter houses and pet shops.

Mr. Hayward supported Mr. Kirk's contention that two men would be required for outside duties.

The former inspector said it would be "absolutely impossible" for one man to do both pound and shelter duties.

Mr. McRoberts said he will go to Vancouver at the end of the month, but had no plans for the future.

Boat Thief

Water 'Jobs' Mount

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Wilfred Ernest Coull, 31, of Victoria, was sentenced Saturday to penitentiary terms totalling 6½ years after pleading guilty to four charges involving theft of a boat here and articles from other boats.

Magistrate Gordon Robson ordered the sentences to be served concurrently with a number of other sentences imposed last week for theft in Port Alberni and Sidney.

ONLY FOUR YEARS

Coull will actually serve only four years on conviction of 14 charges in the three municipalities.

Saturday's charges included theft of a $3,500 cabin cruiser owned by Vernon Tryson of Vancouver. It was stolen from Fisherman's Cove here between Dec. 29 and Jan. 1 and found wrecked at Cafe Beale, near Bamfield, on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Dog Starved, Owner Fined

COQUITLAM (CP) — A starving dog chained to a tree has resulted in conviction of a Coquitlam man for "wilful" neglect.

Gordon Campbell was ordered by Magistrate L. R. Vise to pay a $75 fine or go to jail for 15 days. Campbell must also pay the costs.

SPCA Inspector Anthony Mitchell testified he found the dog, a male Doberman, in a "pitiful" state of malnutrition. He said it was chained to a tree.

The dog was destroyed after Campbell "voluntarily" handed it over to the SPCA.

'Poison' Gangs Raping Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Poison-arrow gangs of big game poachers are denuding Kenya of its wildlife.

Police, equipped with aircraft, and game wardens and African scouts have started a combined operation against the gangs who work with a big black market organization.

There is a big traffic in ivory, rhinoceros horns and game trophies, and the gangs of poachers, armed with poisoned arrows, sometimes number as many as 50 men. They lie up near water holes and when game is encountered, fire at any animal within range. For every animal from which trophies are removed, a dozen more are left to die from wounds.

"But, Sir, surely you bought YOUR Empire for a few strings of beads."

The World Shrinks

THE effective flight last week of three United States military bombers around a global circuit approximately the length of the equator was not proof of any new development in aviation so much as a practical demonstration that no place on earth is now out of reach by air. The three refuellings in flight that were spaced around the 45-hour tour were carried out under adverse conditions of time and weather, and are a substantial part of the fine achievement. The B52 aircraft used were each powered by eight jet engines and capable of full war loads. The B52s have been in existence for some time. Refuelling by air is not new. It is however the combination of these factors with machines of optimum load on a 24,325-mile journey that makes the feat noteworthy.

Here, then, is visible proof the world has shrunk to a time-distance that not long ago might have spanned one continent. Had the aircraft left their home airdrome and crossed the north polar region they could have flown over every capital in the world in much less than half the time. Obviously any nation with the equivalent range in aircraft could do the same thing, with or without full lethal war loads. So the world can extract whatever comfort it may from the fact that atomic bombs can be laid down anywhere in the globe by machines flying at 50,000 feet altitude and at speeds ranging upwards from 600 miles per hour. Under these conditions effective interception would be difficult, where not impossible.

The human implications of this advance outweigh the technical mastery involved. We may be glad that this new ability is a present shield and deterrent to aggression, but matters cannot rest there. In some fashion mankind must outlaw global threats, or war may outlaw man himself.

Empty Promise

SPEAKING for the Dominion government, Health and Welfare Minister Paul Martin has informed Parliament that old-age pensions will be increased "as soon" as the government feels the country can afford to do so. The inference to be drawn is that the government does not believe the country can afford to raise the pensions now.

The facts, however, are against this. The federal government is expected to end the current financial year with a revenue surplus estimated at around $400,000,000, and has disclosed basic estimates of expenditure for the coming year almost $150,000,000 higher than those of 1956-57. It should be obvious from these facts that Canada can very easily afford the relatively small increase in expenditures that a boost in the pension would require.

As for the amount of the base pension itself, the $40 allowance has failed these many years to maintain otherwise penniless old people at anything approaching bare subsistence level. It has always been argued by the Liberal government that the pension was never intended to provide full support, and that therefore the fact that it might be below minimum needs was not a sufficient cause for an increase. Here again, however, conditions cut the ground from under the government's feet. The necessities of the aged are food, shelter, warmth and a little new clothing from time to time. The prices of all these have gone up tremendously in the last few years; so that if $40 was fair and reasonable when the pension was set at that figure no amount of reasoning could establish it as adequate now.

In the face of the patent and widespread distress of these helpless victims of inflation the government's pronouncement has the hollow ring of a pre-election promise which on examination is seen to promise nothing at all.

A Vote in the Dark

A CHARACTERISTIC of the prime minister is that he seems to have lost his savoire faire. Where once Mr. St. Laurent could parry comment and enquiry with aplomb, now he grows testy or angry when pressed into a corner. His former composure has deserted him. It is no disrespect to suggest that age is catching up with him and he no longer commands the self-control that once was so marked in his parliamentary manner.

Mr. St. Laurent cannot be blamed if he has grown tired of the political scene. He reportedly was not keen initially on entering this realm and he has been the first minister of the Crown for the past eight years. This is an exacting office at any time and particularly so in days of international stress. His tenure of office, borne with a distinction that cannot be denied, has coincided with increased participation by Canada in complex and worrying matters of world importance.

It is no secret that Mr. St. Laurent is about ready to step down, it being taken for granted in political circles that the next will be his last election. Another term of office would bring him near the octogenarian mark, and undoubtedly he deserves the private twilight of living that he has earned and which reports indicate he desires. He will lead his party at the expected June election and thereafter make way for a successor.

A point worth noting about this, even though it is inevitable in an aging leader, is that the electorate will be asked to renew the mandate of a government which if successful at the polls would be headed shortly after by an unknown prime minister. Voters in a sense will thus be casting ballots in the dark, unaware of the individual who is to assume Mr. St. Laurent's mantle as head of the Liberal Party.

Island Editors Say

Dangers of Inflation

It might truthfully be said that unrestricted credit offers the fastest route to inflation known to man. It can cripple the economy of a nation with greater speed than any other factor on record.

The average man is highly critical of an era of "tight money," when the local banker is apt to scale down loans requested for business expansion, but all too few realize that such action is often necessary to maintain the stability of both the firm seeking the loan and the national economy.

History tells us that periods of inflation in pre-war Germany and many other countries brought financial ruin, yet we are prone to rely on the old maxim, "It can't happen here," in analyzing our own local or national economic situation.

—PARKSVILLE PROGRESS

Duncan's Little Theatre

Good theatre is generally not available to the residents of smaller communities except by an expensive trip to a large centre on some special occasion.

It is of interest, therefore, once again to pay tribute to the work of Duncan Little Theatre Guild, now hard at work on an adaptation of "Pride and Prejudice," to be presented in the Cowichan High School auditorium at the beginning of February. This ambitious undertaking calls for a generous measure of support.

Duncan playwrights have in recent years received considerable outside notice. Talents of Caycuse and Duncan groups in regional drama festivals have been as striking as the original plays which have come from their members, especially in the Duncan area. Outstanding acting awards have added lustre to local achievements.

—COWICHAN LEADER

Commendable Victory

Don't write off the Saanich Peninsula as an agricultural area just yet. Every so often, when many people half convince themselves that the days of Saanich's agricultural glory are past, someone like Frank Edgell of Blink Bonnie Farm, Saanichton, comes along to prove otherwise. His Saanichton-bred Holstein cow, Cherry Blossom, has brought a production award to western Canada for the first time in history. It is a matter of considerable local pride that the award came to Vancouver Island.

Such agricultural records coming here further emphasize the value of the ancient North and South Saanich Agricultural Society's annual exhibition. For the greater part of a century the society has presented an annual fall fair which has stimulated and encouraged the raising of constantly higher grade agricultural produce. This year the annual fall exhibition will appear for the first time in the more senior role of a Class B fair. In its new stature, the exhibition will be in a better position to serve its district than ever before.

—SIDNEY REVIEW

Aldermanic Responsibility

If aldermen want to argue policy for 24 hours a day, let them. But when they are put into office on a council which is bound by certain laws, then let them follow those laws without question. Or if they do not like the laws, get them changed.

City council is comprised of responsible men, seated in positions of responsibility. They should consider this and work together for the city's good, using the council table as an anvil on which to forge good government, and not as a butcher's chopping block to cut and hack at civic progress with the axe and saw of self-advertisement.

—COMOX FREE PRESS

Eden's Courage

The high point of Eden's career was, of course, his action in resigning as foreign minister following conclusion of the infamous Munich Pact. This took considerable courage, as Munich was generally thought of as leading to "peace in our time," and of the free-world leaders, only Eden and Churchill spoke out against it. They alone recognized it for what it was . . . a sellout of the principles of democracy in the hopes of appeasing the territorial ambitions of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IN AN article on his boyhood days Lord Beaverbrook reveals the secret of his rise to fame.

He was in the habit of going barefoot in summer and so when autumn came and he put his boots on again his feet felt ill at ease. Thus it was that he stumbled when catching hold of a passing mowing machine and the wheel passed over his head, leaving cog marks he still carries. Before his accident he was rather a stupid boy, he says; after it he found he had a clever brain.

The moral obviously is that if you want to be a great success you should get your head run over.

Imagine if your tax rating depended on the clothes you wear; what a sartorial revolution would happen overnight.

Yet seemingly in the Channel Island of Sark the only tax—what a blessed place it must be—is an "appearance tax." A group of landowners is empowered to levy a capital tax of a penny in the pound on anyone who looks, acts or talks as though he could afford to pay the tax.

One of the landowners wants to do away with the tax, however. That would make Sark a tax-dodgers' paradise and bring wealthy residents to the island. Besides, says he with obvious feeling, "no longer will we have to put on our oldest clothes when we go walking to deceive the assessors."

This being the Sabbath did you know that a sundae takes its name from the Lord's day? In Evanston, Illinois, some while back, to combat youthful loitering on Sundays at the soda fountains, an ordinance was passed forbidding the sale of ice cream sodas on the Lord's day. The fountains then served "Sunday Sodas" containing no soda and these proved so popular the customers sought them on week-days, saying "I'll have a Sunday." Pious pressure forced the name-change to sundae.

Except that a fair maiden behind the bar makes eyes at a radio announcer—which has been known to happen elsewhere—there doesn't seem much the matter with the people of Montevideo as disclosed in the River Plate film shown recently in Victoria. They had their own way of being themselves, that's all.

However, the picture didn't please Uruguay too well, which through its embassies has made it known that "the strange portrayal of Uruguayan life and customs that can be seen in the film is exclusively the result of the inspiration of the producers."

Take note, then, that Montevideo has been maligned, although Uruguay is worrying unduly. It is the battle scenes that make this so worthwhile a film.

It depends on your sense of propriety whether you call a smell a smell, an odor or a fragrance—and on the nature of the scent that titillates your nostrils. Society does its best to Emily Post the whole business by perfuming all manner of things; car bodies, record albums, printing inks, wearing apparel, not to speak of that symbol of civilization—soap.

It was soap that helped the Mau Mau. Loyal (and washed) African trackers never could catch up with the terrorists because the Mau Mau always identified the loyalists by the smell of soap. Only after the trackers stopped washing for a few days before an expedition were they able to sneak up and take the Mau Mau unawares.

For all of its fancy perfume soap is thus not all it's cracked up to be, as any small boy can tell you who never heard of the Mau Mau.

Another Setback to Communism?

By J. G. HAYDEN, from Washington

WORLD communism suffered a severe setback in a Paris parliamentary by-election last Sunday, and it may be due for a much more potential blow when Polish voters go to the polls this Sunday.

For years Paris has been the major stronghold of communism in France, and the election this time included large areas of pure working-class voters. It was considered greatly remarkable therefore that the Communist showing dropped to 20.6 per cent, compared with 26.3 in the national election of January, 1956, when the Communists surprisingly increased their parliamentary representation from 98 to 150 seats.

The main campaign issue in the Paris voting was the revolution in Hungary. The French workers are said to have urged a vote against communism as the only visible way of demonstrating their sympathy with the factory and mine unions which now are the main factor of continuing revolution in Hungary.

The same sentiment unmistakably has been boiling up in the last week of the Polish election campaign, but with very limited opportunity for the worker rank and file to register their feelings.

When the new Polish regime under Wladyslaw Gomulka took over last October one of its foremost promises was untrammeled voting in an election previously schedulel for Dec. 16. The new government had not proceeded far before it postponed the voting until Jan. 20, accompanied with announcement that the freedom of choice by the electorate was not going to be quite complete.

The process as since decreed is unique. Parliamentary districts are divided into blocks of five, in each of which eight candidates were permitted to be nominated for the five seats to be filled. Of nominees in each segment five are labeled as Communists and candidates of the Gomulka government. These not only head the list on the ballot but the law also provides that any ballot dropped in the box with no marking is to be counted in favor of the preferred five.

The bottom three candidates in each block of eight generally are members of other than Communist parties, but all of them also handpicked by the government as reasonably "safe." In any event, it was figured, the system would permit no more than a small handful of candidates of doubtful allegiance to be elected.

Over the last 10 days, however, the word is that large numbers of voters are turning to the three slightly irregular candidates, each in their own block, as the only means they have of registering opposition to whatever is left of Russian domination of their affairs.

A few days ago it was announced that some accepted nominees might be dropped from the ballot for "lack of character, responsibility and discipline." The crowning fault is said to be even mild suggestion by candidates that if elected they will stand up both against any new Russian encroachments and for benefits for the Polish masses beyond those already accorded.

Laterly the Gomulka government has been appealing to the voters to "refrain from exercising their freedom of choice."

This doesn't mean that the government wants the voters to stay home. It would like the biggest possible turnout. But it hopes to add to the number of ballots unmarked and hence to be counted for the top five.

The most remarkable feature of the campaign, as viewed from this side of the Atlantic, is the bringing in of Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China to exhort the Polish voters to stick by Russia.

Chou's first speech in Warsaw was very tough, in that he warned the Poles flatly to return to the Russian fold, or else. After a few days of surveying the Polish scene, Chou tone changed. In a trainside address when leaving Warsaw, he said:

"Your achievements are our achievements and your difficulties are our difficulties, we are comrades in arms. The Polish nation can always count on our (that is, Chinese) support."

This Strange Creature

(From The London Free Press)

DR. Glenn Seaborg, Nobel Prize chemist, says, "the automobile is a peculiarly fertile species which reproduces freely and appears to have no natural enemies sufficiently powerful to hold its growth in check. . . . Its reproduction has the peculiar feature that the offspring is always six inches longer, three inches wider and 20 per cent shinier than its parent."

We agree with Dr. Seaborg and with him wonder what the "breeding habits" of the automobile will be 50 years from now.

It should be atomic-powered, foolproof and provided with built-in parking space. Perhaps it will have wings and become a heli-auto. One thing is certain, we shall have automobiles of one kind or another.

Horror in Jamaica

WILLIAM Crouch was re-elected to serve a sixth term as reeve of Saanich 25 years ago. He defeated Rev. Montague Bruce by 372 votes.

His was the longest term of office ever served by a reeve of Saanich to date. The entire Saanich council was re-elected: L. C. Hagar, F. T. Rogers, H. D. Coton, W. F. Somers, Fred Borden, W. R. Woods and Denis Hoare.

Albert Heald was elected reeve of Esquimalt with a majority of 228 votes over Albert Lockley. Four vacant seats on the council were won by Philip S. Going, Thomas Hadfield, A. T. Farley and George Wise.

Reeve Ernest C. Hayward was returned in Oak Bay by acclamation for his fifth term.

Victoria decided to pay United States bondholders in American currency, reversing a previous decision to pay only in Canadian money. The Canadian dollar being worth much less than the American dollar, this decision would cost the city a large sum.

The city's solicitor advised that Victoria was committed to pay in U.S. dollars. And Premier S. F. Tolmie phoned Mayor David Leeming to warn him that the government was alarmed at Victoria's earlier proposal to pay in Canadian funds. Such a move, the premier felt, would damage the credit of all B.C. municipalities, and of the provincial government itself.

AN earthquake laid waste to Kingston, Jamaica, 50 years ago. Eight hundred were killed and a large part of the city destroyed by the quake and the fire that followed.

"Without warning the earth began to shake and tremble at 3.30 on Monday afternoon. The shock, which came from the westward, lasted exactly 36 seconds. The whole city rocked like a ship in a choppy sea, and buildings reeled and fell.

"Eastward a dense cloud of dust arose and enveloped Kingston in a cloud of darkness. The shocks were most destructive along the harbor front, where streets were levelled and crowds of frightened, shrieking people streamed north toward the race course. . . . As the dust lifted, pillars of fire arose in Harbor Street."

VICTORIA'S Jockey Club was in a state of decay, 95 years ago. It owed money to a number of persons, including an elderly carpenter who had built the grandstand and railings at Beacon Hill.

Not having been paid, he still owed for some of the lumber. He went to prison for a $125 debt.

"When the Jockey Club was first formed," The British Colonist acidly remarked, it was understood that its members were 'gentlemen,' and that the rules of the English turf were to be adopted here.

"How far some of the 'gentlemen' have degenerated! . . . Whether the few remaining members of the club in good standing will square off the balance of their indebtedness, or whether a public expose of the defaulters will be made, we cannot say, but it is earnestly to be hoped that a worthy fellow-citizen will not be allowed to suffer a lengthy incarceration."

Give Him a Home

Re Christian George Hanna: How many signatures are needed to prove to a few that they are completely "off their rocker"? Arrange for DPs by the score and no room for a poor little 100-pound man!

Have you ever seen so little intelligence attached to people in so much authority and responsibility?

Don't tell a dope like me that there is no way around it, because even I am not that stupid.

Give the man a home and be done with it. "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof; the world and they that dwell therein." (Ps. 24:1.)

Insular Thinking

Lest an epidemic of insular thinking and shabby behavior take hold amongst the "discontents" let us view squarely the plight of the refugees in our midst. First, they are Canada's invited guests; secondly, for the most part they lack all the small as well as the large comforts of a once-known security and home background.

Although we seek to find them, they are terribly lost and alone. In the adults these scars will never be healed. What true Canadian would dare to add to their anxious fears? What malcontent should be permitted to cast a false viewpoint across their candidacy for labor in this free country?

Old-age pensioners who manage to survive(?) on insufficiencies, will be amongst those of us full of sympathetic desire to help all of these people momentarily without a country. Instead of protesting their eager employment, which is excellently performed, let every one of us give them a job or part job, easing them with a strong warmth into our homes and hearts.

Information Needed

After reading the report on the business tax issue submitted by Alderman Austin Curtis and also the previous report on the same issue by Alderman D. Smith, it looks as though the city council should have had an investigation made and reported on before the recent civic election so that the taxpayers would have had more information on the subject before casting their votes.

Alderman Smith, as a candidate in the election campaign, made the business tax his strong point and made it appear as though some action would be taken in the matter by council this year if he were elected. Consequently, he got a majority vote. Then followed up the appointment of a two-man special committee to inquire into the revision of trade licences and proposed business tax. Even on that they could not agree and so each sent his own report in to council, and the report presented by Alderman Smith was voted out.

The writer is aware that there are many angles to a business tax to be considered. Nevertheless, the intelligence of the homeowner-taxpayer has been given little respect regarding the issue.

Zoos Are Costly

There is, it seems, to be another attempt to start a zoo in the vicinity of Victoria. Do people realize how much it costs to run a zoo efficiently?

Quite apart from the cruelty of keeping wild animals in captivity, the monetary end is something to be considered. Unless there are unlimited funds, the so-called "zoo" will degenerate into a squalid eyesore. We have all seen with pity the dusty, unhappy creatures in the Vancouver zoo, and if we are to have people satisfied with that directing operations, it will be far from satisfactory.

If children are taught that there is no cruelty in depriving a helpless animal of its liberty we are starting on a course that nullifies humane ideas we have been trying to instil in the young.

Also, how will children coming home from school like to encounter some animal escaped from the zoo? Wild creatures have a way of getting out. Perhaps mothers in the district will give that a thought, too.

It is a great disappointment to have to realize that any of our councils or clubs approve such a project. No one but the totally unthinking and uncaring would tolerate the idea for a moment.

Commonwealth Council

In view of the recent tragic developments in the Near and Middle East, and the attendant confusion of conflicting opinions among the member nations of the British Commonwealth, it would appear that some definite form of organization is overdue which would give concrete expression to the thoughts and desires of the people of the countries comprising the British Commonwealth of Nations. It is with this thought in mind that the following suggestion is submitted:

There should be an organization known as The British Commonwealth of Nations. The object of such an organization would be to strengthen the cultural, economic and territorial sovereignty of the various nations comprising the Commonwealth.

To put this object into effect, the federation should function as a council on a permanent basis. It should be a delegate body. The qualifications for delegates to the federation council should be determined by their respective abilities in the cultural, economic and governmental institutions of each nation. Equal representation, with a maximum of three members, should be allowed each member nation.

There are many organizations working for co-ordinated efforts in their respective spheres of interest in the Commonwealth today which are sectarian in nature. That would appear to be their strength; but, in some respects, it is also their weakness. The British Commonwealth Federation of Nations must be non-sectarian in character.

Out-Moded System

With reference to Dr. Fairey's recommendations for technical training methods throughout Canada, I am delighted to hear someone has the intestinal fortitude to get the ball rolling on this out-dated, out-moded, rundown department store type of training for students so inclined.

This is a timely warning to the public relations directors of commerce and industry across the country, to present these deplorable conditions to their leaders, because they are the people who will absorb these students. Tremendous advances for the future convenience and comfort of all mankind have been definitely established in the field of nuclear physics and electronics and chemistry, and we as a people should realize that a proper place for scientific research in above subjects should have a separate university or institution, such as the institute of technology or university of electronics and sciences, to house and teach our future students, and institute a rotation program for foreign students so inclined.

I might also suggest that right here within the boundaries of the city of Victoria are some of the most beautiful lakes with unlimited hydro supplies and natural landscapes, kissed by old-man sunshine and warmly bathed by tropical Pacific currents in mid-winter, when the rest of the Dominion is fog-bound and frozen stiff.

This is my humble suggestion for immediate relief of this very necessary educational and scientific program, so let's put our shoulder to the wheels of progress and give our students a fighting chance to break this barrier.

Man with a Vision

'Let B.C. Give City Centennial Forum'

Dr. Ivan Hanchard, 1091 Joan Crescent, is a man with a vision and the vision is a $3,000,000 civic auditorium to be constructed in Victoria as a province-wide centennial project.

"Here in our beautiful capital city of Victoria we have no suitable forum place, no adequate hall building, no civic auditorium of which the citizens of this rich province can be proud," he said last night.

But, Dr. Hanchard said, his plan would correct that anomaly. He envisages a hall capable of seating 10,000 persons, set in suitably landscaped surroundings, with parking space for 2,000 cars.

Cost of constructing the hall would be totally borne by public subscriptions. "The first million would be raised by donations of $1,000 from some of the province's rich citizens," he suggested.

"Then the next $1,000,000 would be raised by donations of $500 and up, and the third $1,000,000 by donations of $25 and up."

"Architects, artists, legal advisers and bankers of the province could give their services as their contribution to the centenary," he said.

Dr. Hanchard suggested that the hall should be made available free of charge to the people of the province for their use.

"This has been my dream for years," he said. "It is the dream of a poor European boy who came to this free and wonderful country almost half a century ago."

LICENSING AND REGULATION OF DOGS

NOTICE is hereby given that the Municipal Council has entered into an agreement under which the Victoria Branch of the British Columbia Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been appointed to perform the duties of Poundkeeper under the Dog Licence and Regulation By-law, 1956, and generally to do all things and perform all duties required by the said By-law.

Amongst other things the said By-law requires that:

(a) All dogs over the age of four months within the Municipality shall be licenced, the fee being $3.00 for males and spayed females and $5.00 for unspayed females.

(b) The owner of every licensed one shall keep no such dog a collar to which shall be attached the metal tag issued with the licence therefor.

(c) No dog shall be permitted to be at large within the Municipality unless accompanied by and under the effective control of a responsible person—the words "at large" being defined as being elsewhere than on the premises of the owner.

(d) All unlicensed dogs and licensed dogs found at large unaccompanied to be impounded and released only on payment of an impounding fee of $2.00 and a board fee of $1.00 per day in addition to licence fees if unlicensed.

All inquiries regarding missing, stray and impounded dogs should be made to the S.P.C.A. Shelter, 111 Wilson Street, Victoria, telephone No. 3-0514.

Dog licences for 1957 are now due and may be obtained on personal application at the Esquimalt Municipal Hall.

Fingers Crossed Along Edgeware

Eyes on Creek— Will It Flood?

Residents of Edgeware Road who were hit hard by the Dec. 9 floods had their fingers crossed last night hoping they wouldn't see a repeat performance from the current snowfall and predicted rains.

The snow and rain in December caused serious flooding in the area when Bowker Creek overflowed. Homes in the 1600 block Edgeware were seriously damaged.

"I hope it doesn't happen again," said Mrs. R. N. Hobbis, 1612 Edgeware. "I understand the city is going to start some work on Bowker Creek to avoid that flooding happening again.

"Last time my husband was off work for two days cleaning up the mud and slime," she said.

SOME PLAN

"The city engineer and a bunch of men were out here the other day and said the creek wouldn't flood like that again," said D. D. Knight.

"I guess they plan to do something all right—but when?

"We're all prepared if it does happen. We haven't got anything much down that could be damaged if it flooded again," he said.

Ald. Millard H. Mooney, chairman of the city council's public works committee, said it is planned to dredge the bed of Bowker Creek on Hillside where the creek level is high.

"This will give an additional three-foot drop in the creek and avoid having the water back up onto the Edgeware Road area.

TAKES MONEY

"The plans are in our budget, but this is something that takes time and money," Ald. Mooney said.

He said levelling the creek bed would correct all the danger of flooding and no work would have to be done by Saanich or Oak Bay.

NOTICE to owners and producers of logs and pulpwood

This notice is published in reply to a number of enquiries we have had from people wishing to know of the possibilities of a market for pulpwood at Crofton.

Our pulpmill at Crofton is under construction and is expected to go into production this fall.

By that time we will be in the market for pulpwood in the form of logs, logging salvage, farmers' wood, bark-free sawmill waste and chips. (This is in addition to our present requirements for sawlogs, shingle logs and peeler logs suitable for our existing mills.)

At the present time we are actively studying the matter of pulpwood supplies from the above sources. We offer the following suggestions to owners of forest land:

1. Do not permit indiscriminate cutting in your second-growth stands. The value of your land and your financial returns should be increased by good forest practices. Our forestry staff will be willing to offer technical advice to landowners who are interested in managing their forest lands on a tree farm basis.

2. Investigate the market outlets for the wood you can produce. Remember that one of the main cost items affecting your financial returns will be cost of delivering your wood to market. Every additional mile of truck haul adds to your cost and reduces your net return.

3. Do not start cutting until you are certain the material you produce will be acceptable to the available markets. Certain specifications must be met if your wood is to be readily saleable and at the best price.

We will be pleased to send you specifications for acceptable pulpwood material. Address your requests to the Company at 995 W. 6th Avenue, Vancouver 9, B.C.

Guest Soloist Will Display Serious Side

Harry Gomez, the first violist who was responsible for the amusing Christmas concert of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, has a more serious side and will display it soon.

The London-born musician, possibly the youngest-looking 59-year-old around, and a member of the orchestra for about seven years, will be a guest soloist for the first time at the next pair of concerts in the Royal Theatre, Feb. 3 and 4.

He will play Berlioz' "Harold in Italy," which he describes as "a very picturesque work and one that every viola player likes to be able to play, because of its brilliance, its color."

Mr. Gomez is one of six children of the late Manuel Gomez, long-time principal clarinetist with the London Symphony Orchestra, and as such "really grew up with people like Casals, Kreisler and Paderewski in the house continually."

He went through "the vigorous training that naturally a son of a well-known musician would have to go through," starting string lessons at the age of six years.

The First World War interrupted his studies. Mr. Gomez was reluctant to talk about his experiences, stating only that he was a machine gunner in France and was at Gallipoli, where "only 250 of us came out of a battalion of 1,000."

After the war, he entered the musical profession, but as an orchestra member rather than a soloist because "with my father such a famous artist, I felt I should not do so unless I could reach his level."

Canada seemed a land of opportunity, so Mr. Gomez picked Regina ("It seemed to be right in the middle") and in 1927, was directing a pit orchestra in a theatre there.

The depression ended that and he "wandered around Canada quite a bit," settling in Vancouver in 1938. He has lived there since, teaching and free-lancing, although he was concertmaster of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra of the early 40's and now commutes to this city for each pair of concerts.

More musicians worked in the roaring 20's, said Mr. Gomez, although those working now make a better living. What is needed now is to create a public demand for more 'live' music.

Comics' Comic Back

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Santa Anita race track has "loaned" Joe Frisco — the horse-playing, stuttering comedian — for a comeback to the movies. But so far the morose Joe sees two drawbacks: early hours and strong cigars.

The old-time stage and vaudeville star is a comics' comic, but often a non-working one. The big stars from Bob Hope to Jack Benny break up when they're around Joe and borrow his gags, but who gives him roles?

Joe hasn't worked in pictures since Bing Crosby's "Ridin' High" nine years ago. But this year will be Joe's year. He has a dramatic part in "Sweet Smell of Success," starring Burt Lancaster and Tony Curtis.

To see Joe away from the horse tracks and before the camera at Hecht-Hill-Lancaster Productions is a novelty.

"They gave me dollar cigars to smoke in this scene—too strong," mourned Joe. "I asked them to g-go g-get me 15-cent cigars."

SUNDAY, always the best. Odyssey searches for more than $68,000,000 underwater (channels 11 and 12, 1 p.m.); Gerald McBoing Boing is back (same channels, 2.30); Ingrid Bergman comes to the Steve Allen show (channel 4, 8 p.m.)

MONDAY—Channels 4, 5, 11 and 12 spend the morning at the Eisenhower inauguration and parade, starting at 8 or 8.30 a.m.; Robert Montgomery shows the story of Floyd Collins, a miner trapped in 1925 (channel 4, 9.30 p.m.); channels 4, 11 and 12 go to the Inaugural Ball at 11.15 or 11.30 p.m.

TUESDAY—Bing Crosby ad-libs a guest shot with Phil Siffers (channels 11 and 12, 8 p.m.); CBC looks at Vancouver's skid road and Toronto slum clearance (channels 2 and 6, 10 p.m.).

WEDNESDAY—Disneyland shows "Our Friend, the Atom" (channel 5, 8 p.m.); CBC presents Douglas Campbell in Tyron Guthrie's Stratford production of "Oedipus Rex" (channels 2 and 6, 10 p.m.).

FRIDAY—Harry James and Betty Grable are on Bob Hope's Chevy show (channel 4, 9 p.m.); Steve Allen winds up his run on Tonight (channel 4, 11.30 p.m.)

SATURDAY—Hope visits Perry Como to top a really dull day (channel 4, 8 p.m.)

Friday's fight (channel 4, 7 p.m.) looks reasonably interesting, with old Joey Maxim against young Eddie Machen. Good movies are "Four Jills in a Jeep" (channel 12, 10.35 tonight); "Cluny Brown," with Jennifer Jones, Charles Laughton (channel 11, 10.05 Wednesday); "Penny Serenade," with Cary Grant (channel 5, 10.45 Thursday); "Catherine the Great" (channel 6, 9.30 Saturday).

* * *

Joint Recital Ends Artists' Visit Here

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Robin Wood and Winifred Scott will end their music-filled visit to Victoria with a joint recital sponsored by Musical Art Society in Metropolitan United Church at 8.30 Friday.

They open their program with the largo from a Vivaldi concerto grosso and a "duettino concertante after Mozart" by Busoni. Miss Scott then plays eight of Chopin's preludes, some of them his most popular.

Again as a duo, the two play Brahms' variations on St. Antoni chorale. Mr. Wood performs two Liszt works, one the sixth Hungarian rhapsody, and the two conclude with Arthur Benjamin's "Caribbean Dance" and the Russian dance from Igor Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

Tickets are at Ward's, Western Music and Hudson's Bay stores.

Famous Artists has confirmed that Nina Novak and Igor Youskevitch will dance the leads in "Giselle," the opening and major production when the Ballet Russe comes to the Royal Theatre for a one-night stand Jan. 29.

Irina Borowska, Miguel Terekhov and Eugene Slavin will also be in "Giselle," while the "Pas de trois classique" from "Paquita" will be done by Yvonne Chouteau, Alan Howard and Miss Borowska. All of the company appears in the closing "Beau Danube," to be seen here for the first time.

Famous Artists also comes up with the Singing Boys of Norway, another "first time here," in the Royal at 8.30 Thursday. The program, as reported previously, is of songs of the last five centuries, and national dances.

Vancouver Symphony Orchestra is to appear in Courtenay at 2 p.m. today. Next week, it's Ice Capades opening on the 29th and the month's program ends on the 31st with the annual review of Eileen's school of dancing in Oak Bay junior high school.

Mrs. Eileen Kullman, head of the school, says that some 75 of her 125 pupils — aged from two years to the teens — will be in the show, a traditional review with garden scenes, acrobatics and other events.

Soloists will be Marnie Chan, Judi Jae, Lynne Redstrom and the Bluebird Majorettes. Proceeds go to the Cerebral Palsy association of southern Vancouver Island.

Musical director Graham Steed reports that the Victoria Choral Society still needs basses and contraltos for two works to be presented in April.

Mr. Steed is also active in another direction. At 8 p.m. Wednesday, he will lead a group of singers and harpist Lorna Langley in Britten's "Ceremony of the Carols" during a lecture in the Public Library music room. The Britten work, says Mr. Steed, will be "taken apart and put together again."

Ian Thorne, known here for his work in "live" productions at Totem Theatre a few years ago, is doing important work for the CBC. Word received here is that Mr. Thorne is adapting "King Solomon's Mines" and two other scripts for CBC Wednesday night broadcasts.

I Know What I Like — By Tony Emery

There Ought to Be a Law Against Bad Posters

One of the two exhibitions currently at the Art Gallery, "Typography Speaks," is one to which every printer in Victoria should wend his way. To judge ture, government publications, and other material printed locally if is high time the capital city began a drive for better typography.

It is no excuse for printers to say (though it is certainly true) that there is no demand for better typography. It is up to printers to produce the best, since it costs no more than the worst. There are good typographers in B.C., as Lewis Greenby's well-chosen exhibits testify, but they do not seem to be given much opportunity to show what they can do.

"What does it matter?" you may ask, and it is not easy to find an answer that would satisfy the person who would ask that question. But I believe—and I am not alone—that good typography is one of the most be made to the visual education of the ordinary individual.

Posters, if they are not to fail of their purpose, must catch the eye of the man-in-the-street, and a good typographical job combined with color nicely selected and exactly placed will educate subtly while it passes on the manifest message.

Switzerland, in my experience, is unbeatable in this matter of posters. All publicly displayed material must pay a tax. If your poster does not meet the high standards required by the authorities (acting under expert advice) then you are not permitted to offend the innocent passerby with it.

This is bound to raise the cry of "Dictatorship"—from the worthies who would suffer most under such a regime, but it is not a charge that is well supported by the avail-

The Swiss are a sturdy and independent nation, much less subject to regimentation than ourselves, or the Americans; but their common sense leads them to accept—even to welcome—legislation directed toward the preservation of their country's beauty.

British Columbia, like Switzerland, makes capital out of its scenic beauty. It could take a leaf out of Switzerland's book and raise the standard of visual beauty of its townscape. These posters displayed on their vast boardings are public art; they accurately reflect the level taste of the people toward whom they are directed. It would be a simple matter to improve them 500 per cent by this time next month.

But who is going to do it? Not whoever was responsible for the ghastly little windshield sticker handed out with the new licence plates. Not certainly, those who have perpetuated the centennial publications so far put out, which are a hideous mixture of the cute and the clumsy, the provincial (in its pejorative sense) and the pretentious.

Ironically enough, the worst job I have seen for some time was that on the advertisement of a poster design competition in connection with the centenary.

If we are going to advertise our province throughout the land, let us not strive to spread the impression that we are all a bunch of color-blind dopes with no idea of the difference between good design and bad, and no appreciation of a decent lettering job.

How can you help? Start taking an interest in design and layout. Rid yourself, first, of the simpering little Maclean handwriting you were taught at school, and learn a decent italic hand. The Canadian Society for Italic Handwriting will help you, and you will learn what a well-shaped letter looks like.

The Maclean hand has no virtue that is not shared by a good chancery hand, and it has the great drawback of being—even when impeccably executed — damnably dull, characterless and mechanical.

Armed with some knowledge and experience of good lettering and layout, you will be better able to appreciate the nice job of lettering on Lansdowne Junior High School, and the excellent one (which Peter Cotton has pointed out) on the transom of the Provincial Museum.

You will see—perhaps for the first time—how "nasty, poor and brutish" (though not solitary, alas! and seldom short) are the usual examples of typography which sear our eyeballs when we take the air or open our mail. Perhaps it were kinder to leave you to enjoy an anaesthetic calm in the face of these visual horrors.

Talk of Trouble Dismays Steels

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Anita Ekberg and husband Anthony Steel lunching at Romanoff's, discussed the printed and spoken rumors of trouble in their marriage.

"We don't go to restaurants, previews or parties. We're perfectly happy to be alone and enjoy ourselves," said Mr. Steel with a caressing glance at his beautiful blonde wife of 10 months.

"We can't win," said Anita. "If we stay home the gossips say, 'Why aren't they out enjoying themselves? They must be fighting at home.' And if and when we do go out and for one minute we are not talking gaily, they say, 'Anita and Tony were at such and such a place and they didn't look too happy.' If we look into space, they say we are fighting."

"We have not had a single quarrel since our marriage," Tony assured me. "We have disagreed, but we have always talked it out."

"You can't throw people together, especially if they come from two different countries—I'm from Sweden, Tony's from England, and we live in America—and not expect them to disagree sometimes," Anita explained. "Why, even brothers and sisters fight and argue. What can you expect of two people who never knew each other? You can't expect everything to float like a cloud. We were both very selfish and both batchelors, and there are always times when you step on each other's toes. But why do people make such a fuss about everything?"

"I've never been the sentimental type," said Tony, "but this I say from my heart: I have never been so happy or so much in love as I am with my wife."

"We laugh sometimes when we read the rumors," said Anit, "but our parents call us and say 'What happened to your marriage? You were so happy when we saw you. How can you keep explaining that the reports aren't true?"

ANITA EKBERG

"The stories started in England," Tony told me. "The English reporters made little cracks. We didn't pay much attention, even when they accused me of being unpatriotic for leaving England to live with my wife in Hollywood. My wife's work keeps her in Hollywood, and is it wrong for me to want to be with her? When I left England for six years in the service of my country during the war, there were no cracks then. Now they resent bitterly that I should be leaving the country."

"The English resent," said Mrs. Steel, "that I, a Swedish girl, took their most eligible bachelor. Tell me, is it wrong to leave your own country and go to another if you think you'll do better there?

"I didn't pay too much attention when they were mean to us in England," continued the Swedish star, "and I told Tony, 'They won't be mean to us in Hollywood.' But the columnists here were just as bad. This morning we read that we had 'patched up our battles and were going on a second honeymoon.' How can we patch up battles we've never had? It hurt me because I wanted Tony to like Hollywood so much."

"I do," he interrupted.

The Steels have just finished costarring in "Valerie," their first picture together. They liked the experience, and hope to co-star again in "Portofino," which they will make in Europe. "I have to make two pictures a year for Rank for the next three years," Tony said. "But I'm trying to work something out with him that won't take me away from my wife in Hollywood. I like this part of the world."

"We've rented a house," said Anita, "and there are a lot of things to do."

"She's a good cook," said her husband.

Shop talk for the third annual convention of the Photographic Society of America has started already between Irving Dawson and James A. McVie, who are planning the convention. The click of shutters threatens to become deafening May 17 to May 19 when the convention will be held in the Empress Hotel with several hundred top-flight photographers attending.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

May 17-19

Photographers To Rally Here

Several hundred of the top photographers in North America will converge on Victoria's Empress Hotel May 17 to May 19 to attend the third annual convention of the Photographic Society of America.

Experts in every field of photography from pictorial, color, nature, stereo and motion picture photography will attend, and highlights of the three-day convention will be "shooting" tours of the legislative buildings by night, and the Butchart Gardens by day and by night.

The convention has been brought to Victoria by James A. McVie, 2171 Bartlett, who is associate director of the society for Western Canada.

Youssuf Karsh, of Ottawa, world-famous for his portraits of Sir Winston Churchill and other world figures, is expected to attend as is silent movie star Harold Lloyd, who has recently turned to directing.

Displays, demonstrations and trouble-shooting clinics will be held.

Skaters to Try For Show Jobs

Victoria skaters can audition for Ice Capades in Memorial Arena at 4 p.m. and 11 p.m. Friday, Feb. 1, it was announced yesterday.

What a Big Cave You Have!

Then there was the New Yorker who didn't like Elvis Presley and decided to do something about it.

It seems that a record shop had all its Presley 78s mysteriously broken. The records were replaced, and were broken again. At that point, RCA Victor took steps.

For the third time, the Presley discs were put on the rack, but this time an RCA man was put on guard, out of sight. He didn't have long to wait.

A sweet little old lady hobbled slowly up to the rack. She spotted the Presley display, glanced furtively around, and let go with a couple of sharp whacks with her cane.

Observations after watching the latest rock 'n' roll movie:

Chuck Berry is a tremendous entertainer . . . Hollywood teen-agers dance 10 times as well as those in real life . . . To be a teen-age girl in a movie, you have to be blonde, beautiful, and at least 23 years old . . . The Teen-agers have the youngest, tallest and deepest bass singer in existence . . . Some of the "typical teen-age boys" in movies look like they should be playing left tackle for Notre Dame.

NEW RELEASES: Latest dance craze to hit the U.S., according to a record by somebody called Little Joe and The Thrillers, is a cultured-sounding thing known as "The Slop" . . . Even though "Red Sails in the Sunset" by Tab Hunter is a big hit, it doesn't disguise the fact that he sings flatter than stale ginger ale . . . The Rover Boys have a nice new ballad in "Little Did I Know" that will probably turn into a mild hit in spite of the overdone background . . . George Hamilton IV does his usual terrific job on his latest release, "Only One Love." This is one western guitar-packer that can sing . . . Robin Robinson, a smooth new vocalist with the polished style of a veteran, makes his first bid for a hit with another ballad, "I Promise You" on the new Antler label.

* * *

"NEW" HILLTOPPERS: After terrific success with straight ballads, the Hilltoppers have followed the switch to calypso with "Mary Ann." The result is wonderful . . . Harmonica fans will like Allan Black's latest, "Harmonica Rock"

Marcel Missing as Cougars Blanked; Expected to Face Canucks Tomorrow

Victoria Cougars last night played their first complete Western Hockey League game without Marcel Pelletier since the big goalkeeper joined the club at the start of the 1954-55 season but it didn't make much difference. The Cougars could not get the puck past Bev Bentley once as the Royals scored a 4-0 win on New Westminster ice to take over second place in the Western Division.

Calgary	41	19	21	1	135	131	39
Winnipeg	45	13	30	2	123	170	28

Last night's scores: Edmonton 1 at Brandon 4, Seattle 1 at Calgary 4, VICTORIA 0 at New Westminster 4.

Next games: Tomorrow—Vancouver at VICTORIA, Calgary at Winnipeg.

Pelletier was forced to miss the game because of the hand injury suffered Friday night at Vancouver.

Stitches were needed to close a cut on the back on his right hand, caused by a Vancouver skate in a scramble. The hand was sore and swollen yesterday and Pelletier was kept out of action on the orders of the club doctor.

Victoria coach Colin Kilburn reported last night that Pelletier was expected to be ready for tomorrow night's game at Memorial Arena against Vancouver Canucks.

Last night, Canuck's Ray Mikulan guarded the nets in Pelletier's place and got in front of 36 of the 40 shots sped his way. He was caught napping on Bobby Love's second-period goal but turned in a steady game.

Cougars missed for the fourth time this season a chance to cut the difference between games won and games lost to three and are once again five games below .500. They managed only 19 shots at Bentley, and 10 of those came in the first period.

It was Bentley's sixth shutout in the 27 games he has played.

Cougars didn't help their cause by getting 20 of the game's 26 minutes in penalties. Bill Dobbyn took three minors and a misconduct, for arguing about the third minor, to take undisputed possession of the league lead.

Dobbyn, who has 128 minutes, pulled away from Royals' Pete Durham (119), who only drew one minor, and Winnipeg's Bill Burega (117), who had to be satisfied with four minutes Friday night.

In other games, Calgary Stampeders continued their upsurge by slapping down Seattle Americans, 4-1, and Brandon Regals ended a bit of a skid, at least momentarily, by tripping Edmonton Flyers, 4-1.

Feature of the other two games was the ending of what was probably professional hockey's longest penaltyless streak.

Val Fonteyne, 23-year-old Seattle leftwinger, who started the game without a penalty in the 120 professional games he had played, saw the streak ended when referee Vern Buffey gave him two minutes for a mild joust with Calgary goalkeeper Hank Bassen in the third period.

A crowd of 6,829 saw the improved Stamps win their fifth game in a row in rugged action featured by two fights and the fine goaling of Seattle's Emile Francis, who made 32 stops.

Americans, playing their fourth game in five nights and their sixth in nine nights, managed only 16 shots. A long one by Gordie Sinclair got past Bassen in the second period to deprive the Calgary goalie of his fourth shutout.

CHALLENGE MET

Perhaps in answer to the Saskatoon crowd of 5,000 which turned out on Wednesday when the Regals shifted a home game because of poor attendance at home games, Brandon turned out the largest crowd of the season—more than 4,000—for the crucial game against Flyers.

Winners played it safe from there, checking the speedy Flyers closely and breaking away for the clincher midway through the last period.

Checking Harvey Hurd's racquet carefully after the game, Ed Hedley still couldn't find anything special about it that might help explain the 16-year-old's 15-10, 15-5 victory over Hedley in the men's singles final of the Victoria and district badminton championships, which wound up last night at the Amphion Street courts.—(Colonist photo by Ted Harris.)

Hurd in Brilliant Display To Win City Shuttle Crown

Harvey Hurd, showing complete concentration and a variety of shots, defeated Ed Hedley in straight sets, 15-10, 15-5, at the Amphion Street courts last night to win the men's singles title of the Victoria and district badminton championships.

Hurd, the 16-year-old star who will compete in the Canadian championships in Ontario next month, had to come from behind an 8-0 deficit to win the first game, but from that point on he was in complete command, keeping Hedley on the defensive the rest of the way.

Maureen Bray successfully defended her women's singles crown, polishing off Jill Kelly, 11-0, 11-0, in a game that saw only 31 services, 26 by Miss Bray.

LOSE BY DEFAULT

Miss Bray and Mrs. Kelly later teamed up in the ladies' doubles, but lost by default to Joyce MacDonald and Muriel Knott when Miss Bray pulled a tendon in her leg and had to be helped from the floor.

Hedley and Dunc Tolson won the men's doubles crown, defeating Jim Wells and Reg Hoadley, 15-11, 17-14. Mixed doubles crown went to George Lane and Muriel Knott, by virtue of a 15-7, 15-7 win over Len Tolson and Claire King.

In the veterans' doubles final, Lane and Rom Knott combined to down Wells and Hoadley, 2-15, 15-7, 15-8.

Other results follow:

"B" FLIGHT

Men's singles—Warren Bell defeated Dunc Tolson, 15-10, 15-11.

Men's doubles — Phil Crampton and Don Radford defeated Les Wilson and Brian Sluggett, 9-15, 15-12, 15-10.

Ladies' doubles — Marlene Hunt and Joan Rothe defeated Margaret Johnstone and Helen MacDonald, 15-8, 15-6.

Mixed doubles—Rene Wells and Jim Wells defeated Dorothy Sluggett and Gordie Sluggett, 15-1, 15-4.

"C" FLIGHT

Ladies' doubles—Virginia Lindal and Mary Elliott defeated Heather Sinclair and Claire Collison, 3-15, 15-7, 17-14.

Men's doubles—D. Whitehead and P. Smithers defeated M. Smith and B. Smith by default.

Mixed doubles—E. Raffle and S. Helgeson defeated Bill Stone and E. Dunlop, 15-11, 15-8.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

Al Leader, the thorough president of the Western Hockey League, is a figure filbert of no mean ability and a fellow who likes to know what's going on in his league. So, it actually shouldn't have been any surprise to discover that he had done something about a casual press-box remark that some players thought Seattle Americans were getting more assists than they deserved.

Rebuttal, in the form of statistics, arrived in the mail yesterday. Brandon Regals, if assists mean anything, are the passingest team in the WHL with an average of 1.66 assists per goal. Then come Vancouver Canucks at 1.64 assists per goal and New Westminster Royals at 1.62.

Americans are next with 1.61, Victoria Cougars fifth at 1.48, Edmonton Flyers sixth at 1.46, Calgary Stampeders seventh at 1.44 and Winnipeg Warriors eighth at 1.41.

Average number of assists per goal in the WHL is 1.54, roughly about three assists for every two goals. Considering the number of goals scored from scrambles, that sounds like a lot of assists. And it is.

However, the WHL prexy had an answer for that one, too. Up until Jan. 13, average number of assists per goal in the National Hockey League was 1.57 and in the American Hockey League it was a whopping 1.67.

This doesn't necessarily prove that the WHL isn't too liberal with assists but it does show that it's at least reasonable on a comparative basis. But the figures didn't disprove the contention that the Americans benefit from lenient scoring at home, which was the actual complaint.

With only summaries of Seattle-Victoria games available for reference, it would appear that the Americans get a break here and there on home ice.

In five games at Seattle, the Americans scored 21 goals against the Cougars. Two assists were given on 15 of them, one assist on four and two were unassisted. In five games at Victoria, Americans got double assists on 10 goals, a single assist on eight and none on one. As for the Cougars, they got a double assist on only three of 15 goals at Seattle and one assist on the other 15. In Victoria, the Cougars got double assists on six of 15 goals, a single assist on eight and had one unassisted goal.

About the only sensible thing that has happened in the Terry Sawchuk case is the attitude taken by Lynn Patrick, general manager of the Boston Bruins, who, unfortunately, was away from the scene when his all-star goalkeeper decided to retire from hockey.

"His nerves are bad," Lynn stated on his arrival at Toronto. "The sooner everybody gets off his back the better it will be."

That Sawchuk had to be harried and pursued after he announced his decision to give up active hockey again points up the price paid by celebrities, in sports and other spheres of activity.

It is only reasonable for anyone in the public eye to think that he is entitled to as much privacy as anyone else when it comes to personal affairs and to resent intrusion by those who believe that these things should be made public.

If Sawchuk wants to quit hockey, and a job paying an estimated $12,000 a year, that is his right. He shouldn't be called on to publicly explain his reasons if he doesn't so choose and he shouldn't have to suffer from innuendo because he refused to discuss a private matter.

Worst of all was the handling of the incident by Milt Schmidt, the Boston coach, who announced that Sawchuk had been suspended for life because he had decided to give up hockey.

That was unnecessary. Sawchuk couldn't play for any other club in any event and, having announced his retirement, he was no longer entitled to salary and, obviously, didn't expect any. Schmidt's action, and taking into consideration there may be things the public doesn't know about that caused the situation, was graceless and uncalled for and did nothing but give professional hockey a black eye. If a fellow doesn't want to continue playing it doesn't mean there is something wrong with him.

Sinclair Replies to Protest

Pearkes Gets Promise Of No Fishing Licence

By TOM GREEN
(Colonist Ottawa Correspondent)

OTTAWA—Major-General G. R. Pearkes, VC, Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, Saturday obtained a promise from Fisheries Minister James Sinclair that no licence fee will be imposed for this year in any event upon non-resident anglers, and that the whole matter will be further considered.

Suggestions had been made that a $10 licence fee be imposed. General Pearkes protested that if such a licence fee were enforced it would have a very detrimental effect upon boathouse proprietors, motel operators and fishing guides on Vancouver Island who derive the main part of their livelihood from casual tourists from the United States and the prairie provinces.

In his reply to General Pearkes, the minister of fisheries said he agrees that there is quite a difference between the casual fishing of residents of tourist camps and the all-out fishing effort of the American yachts in Rivers Inlet and Phillips Arm, and that if a licensing system is brought in there should be a differential.

"The chief supervisor in Vancouver," the minister continues in his reply to General Pearkes' strong protest, "has received an unusually large response to this proposal, with the commercial fishermen being strongly in favor of it and the tourist camp operators being strenuously opposed to it."

He thought it would be "unwise to make any change in the regulations this year, but to have the matter more fully discussed by both the sports fishermen and the commercial fishermen during the coming year with the hope of arriving at some equitable plan for 1958."

Only Five Seeded Players Remain in Squash Tourney

BY JIM TAYLOR

With either the finals or semi-finals reached in all events the annual Pacific Coast squash racquets championships has, in most cases, turned into a battle of unseeded players.

Of the 20 seeded players in the five major divisions, only five remain in contention going into today's final action at the Victoria City Squash Club's Sussex Hotel courts.

In the "A" class, the veteran Gene Hoover of Seattle, seeking his second straight coast title, rolled on in fine fashion but his former clubmate and chief threat in previous years, Ted Clarke, faltered in the quarter-finals.

Hoover defeated Ned Larson of Shawnigan Lake in straight games, 15-11, 15-9, and 15-13, to enter the finals. He is a heavy favorite to repeat his performance of last year.

Hoover will meet either Dr. Kem Greenwood of Victoria or Walt Pettit of San Francisco tonight. The two were originally scheduled to play off last night, but the match was postponed until this afternoon.

SCORES UPSET

Greenwood pulled the biggest upset of the day by ousting Clarke in straight games, 13-12, 13-10, 13-11, in the quarter-finals. Clarke, now playing out of Vancouver, was not covering the court in his usual manner and Greenwood appeared at peak form in the match. Pettit won his quarter-final, 3-0, over Earle McLaren of Seattle.

First-seeded Jim Barber of Vancouver entered the semis of the "B" division with a 16-17, 15-11, 15-10, 15-12 win over Henry Swigert of Portland. He will meet Bruce Keith of Seattle, who beat clubmate Bud McGuiness, 3-0. Jim Rogers of Seattle beat Ross Hughes of Portland by the same score, and will take on Bob Wade of Vancouver in the other semi-final. Wade defeated Seattle's Jack Lycette, 3-1.

GOOD CITY SHOWING

Best showing for city players was made in the ladies' division, which turned into an all-Victoria event after the quarter-finals. Mrs. L. Greenwood, first seeded among the ladies, downed Bridget Okell, 3-0, and Marjorie Stevenson defeated S. Moilliet, 3-0, in the semis. Final is slated for 10.15 this morning.

Finals have been reached in one other event, the "D" division. H. Wotherspoon of Vancouver clashes with Gary Cox of Seattle for the title at 12.45. Wotherspoon beat Art Proctor of Victoria, 3-1, and Joe LeBlanc of the Navy lost to Cox by the same score.

Under the system used by the Pacific Northwest Squash Association, the winners in all divisions with the exception of "A" class will move into the next highest division in their next tournament.

Results:

"A" CLASS

Semi-final—Hoover (S) defeated N. Larson (BL), 3-0. Quarter-finals—Greenwood (Vic) defeated Clarke (Van) 3-0; Pettit (SP) defeated McLaren (S), 3-1; Larson (SL) defeated Babson (P), 3-2; Hoover (S) defeated Neale (P), 3-1.

"B" CLASS

Quarter-finals—Barber (Van) defeated Swigert (P), 3-1; Keith (S) defeated McGuinness (S), 3-0; Rogers (S) defeated Hughes (P), 3-0; Wade (Van) defeated Lycette (S), 3-1.

LADIES

Semi-finals—Mrs. L. Greenwood (V) defeated B. Okell (V), 3-0. M. Stevenson (Vic) defeated S. Moilliet (Vic), 3-0.

VETERANS

Semi-finals — Colwill (S) defeated Miller (SP), 3-0; Smith (P) defeated Stewart (SP), 3-0.

"C" CLASS

Quarter-finals—Jones (BCN) defeated Schlosstein (S), 3-1; Stewart (S) defeated Lawrence (BCN), 3-0; Brads (S) defeated Kammsyer (S), 3-0; Gardom (S) defeated Redhead (P), 3-0.

"D" CLASS

Semi-final — Wotherspoon (Van) defeated Proctor (V), 3-1; Cox (S) defeated LeBlanc (BCN), 3-1.

Alberni Rink Gains Finals Of B.C. High School Play

DUNCAN (Special)—An Alberni Valley rink advanced to the British Columbia high school curling championships Saturday by winning the western regional playoffs in easy fashion against rinks from Vancouver and Chilliwack at the Cowichan Curling Club.

Skipped by Barry Meyers, the Alberni quartet won the right to meet rinks representing the Okanagan and Kootenay zones in the B.C. playdowns at Vanouver Feb. 2. The B.C. winner will represent the province in the Canadian high school championships.

The Alberni rink had little trouble yesterday, defeating Lord Byng High of Vancouver, 19-3, in its opening test and following up with an 11-8 win over the Royal Canadian Engineers Apprentice Training School rink from Chilliwack. Against Vancouver, the winners scored in every end but the sixth when Lord Byng scored three.

The winners were never headed against the Chilliwack quartet, scoring four in the first end and leading 6-1 after three ends. Curling with Meyers were Jack Arnet, third; Bob Christie, second, and Ed McAskill, lead.

Scores:

Alberni	403	020	201	0—11
Chilliwack	010	202	010	2—8
Alberni	311	230	132	4—18
Vancouver	000	003	000	0—3
Vancouver	020	210	011	0—7
Chilliwack	101	001	100	0—4

Bays Edge Visitors; Juniors Also Score

Oak Bay High School basketball defeated the Victoria High Totems, Saturday night while the Bays were losing, 48-47, to the dark-horse Mt. Douglas quintet. Jack Showers was top scorer for the seniors last night with 14 points. Gould, with 10 points, and Halkett and Green with nine apiece, led the junior Bays.

teams posted a double victory on their home courts last night as the seniors downed Vancouver Lord Byng High School, 35-30, in an exhibition game and the juniors opened play in the new inter-high league with a 33-15 win over Victoria High.

The seniors' win over the Vancouver school added further proof to the belief that this year's city hoop championships could be the closest one in years. Lord Byng

Lord Byng—Hatch 6, Gustue 3, Barret 4, Hartley 2, Barron 2, Harris, Robertson 4, Fyfe 4, Candlish 6. Total—30.

Oak Bay—Showers 14, McKay 8, Mitchell, Hawes 2, Johnston 4, Matheson, Sparks 3, Halkett, Farquhar, Farmer, Roberts. Total—35.

Walcott Learned . . . . . . From Experience

Marciano Hit the Hardest

By FRANK HYDE

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The man who fought them both twice says Rocky Marciano was a harder puncher than Joe Louis.

"I should add, though," said Jersey Joe Walcott "that they were two different types of punchers. Marciano could knock you out kicking with one punch but he had to get his shot—get you set up right if you see what I mean. Louis was more dangerous with either hand. He'd set you up with one type of punch and chill you with another. Louis had more polish and could flurry better. But, speaking strictly of hard punching, once Rocky got you where he wanted you, good night."

Joe, who won the title by knocking out Ezzard Charles in the seventh round at Pittsburgh July 18, 1951, and lost it to Marciano at Philadelphia, Sept. 23, 1952, grinned broadly:

"I ought to know, don't you think?" said Old Joe, now a wrestling referee.

Marciano stopped Jersey Joe, born Arnold Raymond Cream, in the 13th of their first meeting and in the opening round of their controversial return at Chicago May 15, 1953.

Louis, then champ, took a close decision over Walcott in December, 1947, a climax to Jersey Joe's rags-to-riches comeback after ring retirement.

The Brown Bomber kayoed Joe in the 11th six months later.

Jersey Joe said his wrestling work "is just a little vacation from my juvenile officer job in Camden." Joe is associated with the police department, aiding its campaign against juvenile delinquency in his New Jersey hometown.

Someone mentioned current champion Floyd Patterson and Joe said:

"That boy is here for a long time as heavyweight champ. He'll be one of boxing's really good champions.

"Got a few weaknesses, like that leaping righthand punch, guess the writers call it his 'gazelle punch,' but he'll be all right. That hoppin' right of his can get him in trouble against good, young fighters. They'd pull away and sucker him with a counter."

Who has the best chance to dethrone Patterson?

"That Pastrano fellow (Willie Pastrano) because he is fast, got a fine left jab . . .

"I'd rate Eddie Machen as his next most dangerous rival right now because he hits pretty hard. But Patterson would be too fast for him."

Wallabies Visit B.C.

VANCOUVER (BUP) — Australia's famous rugby team, the Wallabies, will play in Vancouver about 14 months from now—and 10 years to the month from their last visit to British Columbia.

The Wallabies will play a B.C. side as one of the sports events of British Columbia's centennial year of 1958.

Habs Extend Amazing Streak; Wings Rally to Defeat Hawks

Montreal Canadiens won their seventh straight game and extended their unbeaten streak in the National Hockey League to 10 games last night by blanking New York Rangers, 5-0, for their 21st consecutive victory over the Rangers at Montreal Forum.

The victory kept the Habs four points ahead of the runner-up Detroit Red Wings, who edged Chicago Black Hawks, 3-2, in a televised afternoon game. In last night's other game, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Boston Bruins, 4-1.

New York	42	14	21	7	98	128	35
Chicago	43	8	28	7	89	135	23

Last night's scores: Detroit 3 at Chicago 2. New York 0 at Montreal 5. Boston 1 at Toronto 4.

Next games: tonight, Montreal at Chicago, Toronto at Boston, New York at Detroit.

Last victory for the Rangers in regular season play at Montreal was in January of 1954. Since 1950, the Rangers record on a Montreal ice is one win, four ties and 41 losses and New York goalie Gump Worsley has been beaten 49 straight times at the Forum.

ROCKET HOT

Maurice Richard picked up his 17th and 18th goals of the season in the one-sided affair, although his second went into the net off Ranger defenceman Harry Howell. The pair brought his lifetime season total to 478. Don Marshall, Dickie Moore and Andre Pronovost got the other Montreal goals.

Jacques Plante had an easy time in picking up his seventh shutout of the season, blocking only 16 shots compared to 31 by a busy Worsley.

At Chicago, Marcel Pronovost scored with less than five minutes remaining in the third period to give Wings their victory, after Gordie Howe had scored his 38th goal of the season on a pass from Ted Lindsay to tie the score at 12.28.

Howe and Lindsay are now tied for second place in the NHL scoring race with 52 points, six back of Montreal's Jean Beliveau. Lindsay has 21 goals and 31 assists.

CHADWICK STARS

Ed Chadwick was the individual star in Toronto's victory, blocking 33 shots in a brilliant performance. Norm Defelice, making his second start since taking over from Terry Sawchuk in the Bruin nets, appeared shaky at times but still wound up with 24 saves.

Ted Kennedy scored his second goal since returning to the Leafs and Bob Pulford, Ron Stewart and Dickie Moore got the other Toronto markers. Centre Larry Regan scored the Bruins' only goal at 8.30 of the first period.

Leo Labine and Bob Armstrong of Boston were involved in a stick-swinging duel with Jim Armstrong in the closing seconds of the game and all three received major penalties for fighting.

Bookies Confused as Leonard Tied for Caliente Golf Lead

AGUA CALIENTE, Calif. (UP)—The crazy, mixed-up Caliente Open finished off its third round of competition Saturday with three men tied for first place; Tommy Bolt fined $100 for throwing a club, and the bookmakers more confused than anybody.

After 54 holes of play, Stan Leonard, the 40-year-old Canadian star; Ed Furgol, lame-armed former national Open champion, and Paul Harney, a 27-year-old newcomer from Bolton, Mass., were in a deadlock for first place with 209 totals.

And the bookmakers, who installed defending champion Mike Souchak as the favorite, didn't know which way to turn. Harney had started the tournament as a 35-1 shot, Furgol at 12-1 and Leonard at 20-1.

But Saturday they withstood the pressure from a flock of the current big-name stars and appeared to be in good position to knock down the first prize of $2,000.

Leonard had a 69 over the Tijuana Country Club course that had been lengthened to 7,100 yards Saturday; Furgol had a 70 and Harney, the leader at the half-way mark, slipped slightly with a 74.

But they were a long ways from making a runaway of it.

Eric Brown, the Scotland star, came in with a 70 for 210 and was tied at that mark with Al Besselink, who had a 74 but is a tough man to beat when there is enough money at stake. Al has been betting on himself with the bookmakers here and is in a strong position.

Bolt, fined for club throwing, became involved in hassle of some type with Jackie Burke, the PGA and masters champion, and they reportedly made up after being near to tossing punches Friday night.

VIEWS OF SPORT

By Red Smith

Mosey King, Financier

Moses King, called Mosey by Yale students over half a century, was a tough and agile little man who grew up fighting for money in the back rooms of saloons and became the elder statesman of the athletic department in New Haven. He lived 72 years according to the records and 74 according to his friends, and then one night about a month ago a car clipped him as he was crossing Whalley Avenue.

This is the street that Charley Loftus, the Yale publicity man, points out to visitors as the official proving ground for nifty halfbacks. If they reach the far curb alive, they're on the team. Mosey King didn't make the curb, and about four hours later he died.

What would you say a man's top salary would be over 46 years as boxing coach at Yale? Five thousand dollars a year, maybe $7,500? Well, now it comes out that Mosey King left an estate of nearly half a million to relatives scattered through New England.

This isn't unprecedented. Jock Sutherland never made more than $12,000 a year as football coach at Pittsburgh, and when he died he left something between $600,000 and $750,000. He invested wisely. So did Gene Tunney and Eddie Egan who were friends of Mose King and probably got advice from the same source that guided Mose through the financial jungles. Devote your life to advising young Yales, and when they're old Yales they can advise you.

Elder Statesman

When he was in his 70s, Mosey could have weighed in close to the limit of the lightweight division in which he fought as a boy. He never wore an overcoat in a New Haven winter and never owned a car. He walked 10 miles a day, and on each New Year's Day, which was his birthday, he took a swim in Long Island Sound. It was on one of his nightly walks that he was hit by the car.

He was Eddie Eagan's coach when the former chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission was heavyweight champion at Yale. Perhaps because Mosey himself had been a skillful boxer, he always regarded his friend, Gene Tunney, as the greatest of all heavyweight champions; not such a hitter as Jack Dempsey or Joe Louis but a dedicated man who trained faithfully, planned his fights intelligently and made the most of a fine physique, a facile brain and wonderful legs.

The obituaries didn't mention this, but the story is that when Mosey started at Yale it was not as a boxing coach but as a quasi-official member of the football staff. Because he was deft and light of foot, it was felt he could teach the New Haven backs some tricks of co-ordination.

Anyhow, he went to work there in 1906, became boxing coach the following year, and stayed on after his retirement about four years ago. He was a sort of unofficial trouble-shooter in his last years, seeking out students who might have emotional or financial or family difficulties, taking them out to dinner, trying to talk them into balance and a sense of proportion.

Battle of Short Counts

He was, it should be remembered, a product of what is sometimes called "boxing's dirty business." Born in New York but brought up in New London, he started fighting when he was 14, and his first instructor was James J. Corbett. He fought nine years, won the New England lightweight championship, never was knocked out.

When Mosey was 18 or so he and a boy from Wallingford, Conn., named Shorty Gans were claimants for the state lightweight title. A match was made in the back room of a saloon in New Britain with the winner to get 65 per cent of the gate, such as it might be, and the loser 35 per cent.

Backers of Shorty Gans were laying 4 to 1 on their man, and even that price looked good when Gans dropped Mosey in the fifth round. Mosey got up fighting and floored his man.

In fact, he floored Gans seven times, but by the most curious of coincidences every knockdown was scored in the last nine seconds of the round. Dick Howell, for many years afterward a Bridgeport newspaper man, was the referee. Every time Gans went down, Howell started counting. Every time he reached nine, the bell rang.

Years later Howell wrote that "the bell should not have come to Gans's rescue just to the second so many times, but that is another story." The referee was not a man to impugn either the competence or the impartiality of the timekeeper.

Anyhow, in the 14th round a right to the jaw dropped Gans for the seventh time. For the seventh time, the bell ended the round at the count of nine. The fallen gladiator's handlers scraped him up and carried him to his corner.

The 15th round started but Gans didn't. He couldn't get off his stool. Mosey always said it was a real tough fight.

Sawchuk Adds Nothing New On TV Show

TORONTO (CP) — Terry Sawchuk appeared on a television program Friday night but gave no inkling of why he quit as a National Hockey League goaltender for Boston Bruins. He said his plans are indefinite.

The 27-year-old netminder, who left Bruins suddenly last Tuesday, and was suspended, said he will issue a statement Monday.

Sawchuk and his wife were interviewed in their home in Milford, a suburb of Detroit, on the CBC's television program Graphic.

Sawchuk said he is happy to be home but declined to comment on developments of the last few days.

MORRISON STARS

Al Webb

Morrison's basketball team always gets a good steady performance from this former Esquimalt High School star. A guard, he's 5 ft. 8 in. tall and 150 lbs.

Don Norbury

A 185-lb. guard on Morrison's this year, a very good rebound player and good club man. Don is 6 ft. tall and is a former Saanich and Suburban League player.

Optimists Take Lead By Blanking Thistles

Two Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association matches were the only outdoor sports events to survive the weather conditions in the Greater Victoria area yesterday. Both games were played in the morning.

Optimists took over Division VI leadership with a 1-0 victory over Saanich Thistles of Division VII at Windsor Park. Bob Moffatt scored the only goal of the game in the first half, bouncing a shot off a Thistle halfback into the net.

At Central Park, Bill Smith scored in the final second of the game to give Eagles of Division IV a 2-2 draw with Central Flyers, Division V. Bruce Graham got the other Eagle goal, while Bob Armstrong tallied twice for the Flyers.

The association will hold an important meeting Wednesday night at 1050 Yates Street at 8. All clubs are asked to have a representative on hand.

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Honeys Alibi captured the $27,700 Santa Catalina Handicap at a mile and one-eighth Saturday as a sun-drenched crowd of 52,500 saw the even-money favorite, Social Climber, beat only one horse in the field of eight.

Seattle-owned Count Chic was second and Terrang third. Honeys Alibi covered the distance in 1.48 4-5 with Jack Westrope in the saddle. He paid $8.80 on the front end.

Victoria Shames the Heroes

By BRUCE McKELVIE

NEXT YEAR British Columbia will celebrate one hundred years of organized government on the mainland, and coincidently, a century since the gold rush to the Fraser River gave impetus to settlement and industrial development. The romance and adventure of the past century will be recalled as matters incidental to the festivities. There will be many projects started as commemorative undertakings. Already different communities are planning how they may fittingly mark the centennial year.

Mr. McKelvie is a newspaperman and historian. No man knows the story of B.C. like him. No man knows better or appreciates more the contribution of the pioneers of the province. Mr. McKelvie feels very strongly that particularly at this time their memories should be brought, and he suggests a method of reminding the people of their not infrequent heroism and of honoring their names.

Here in Pioneer Park is the burial place of many of early Victoria's most notable sons. And author Bruce McKelvie says the city is shamed by the neglect of their memorials, many of them sadly decayed.—ISLANDER photo by Bud Kinsman.

Cougar Smith was a crack shot. But some of the men he guided in the woods "couldn't hit a barn door." Here he sights his old Marlin rifle.

CECIL "COUGAR" SMITH, who probably has shot more big game on Vancouver Island than any other man alive, was never in any grave danger except through the fault of men he was hunting with. Wolf, elk, bear and cougar killing was no novelty to him. He estimates he has slain upwards of 600 cougar.

But the men he guided on the hunt often got him into awkward situations . . .

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL . . . . . A ROVING COMMISSION

His First Battle, Brief Victory

This is the third of a series of articles written by Sir Winston Churchill on the first 34 years of his life. This story throws a brilliant and revealing light on the background of the world's most outstanding statesman. With vividness, charm and humor Sir Winston describes his early life as a student, soldier, correspondent and politician. This series is taken from a book published under the title, "A Roving Commission."

AT SANDHURST I had a new start. I was no longer handicapped by past neglect of Latin, French or mathematics. We had now to learn fresh things and we all started equal. Tactics, fortification, topography (mapmaking), military law and military administration formed the whole curriculum. In addition were drill, gymnastics and riding.

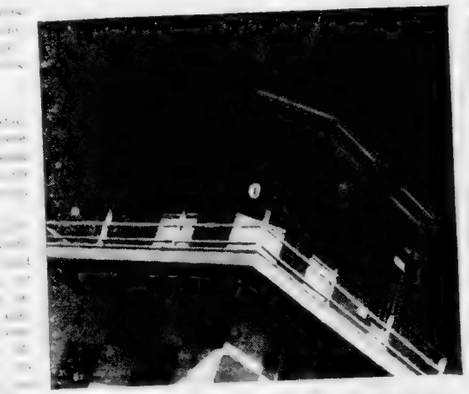
Men in the Towers Talk Pilots Down in Fog or Snow

SAFER FOR TRAVELLERS

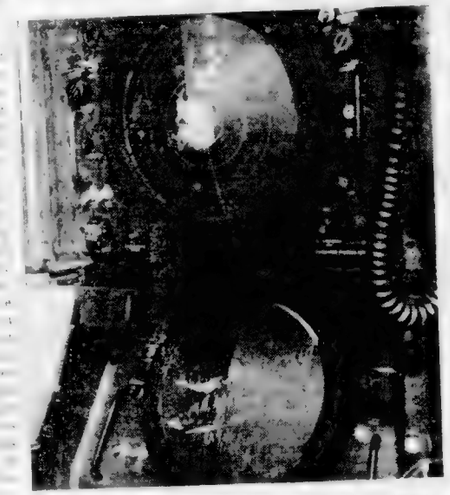
ONE WAY TRAFFIC



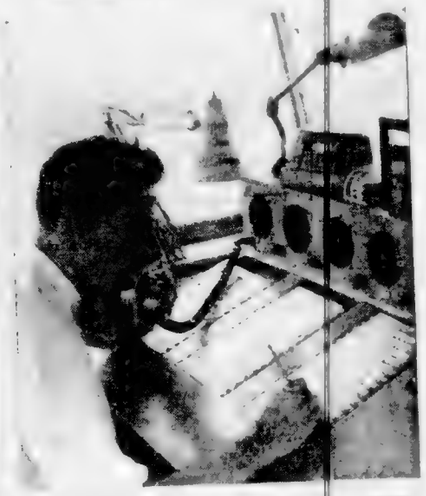
Here is the control tower. Typical of the structures from Patricia Bay to Gander, where well-drilled personnel guard against traffic snarls and watch the flow of incoming and outgoing aircraft.

All airplane captains are checked out on instrument landing and takeoff after the most rigid tests of their skill. Here a pilot talks with the control officer in his tower.

HIGH EFFICIENCY



And here are the radar screens used in bringing an airplane to a ground controlled landing. Top, the long range scan, which the operator uses to bring his charge to the correct approach position, and below it the screen by which the final approach and landing is regulated.



And here is the control officer. He marks [illegible] movement in and around his airport. No plane may take off or land without his permission. He is in [illegible] communication over great distances with his charges. [illegible] the radar control he can land [illegible]

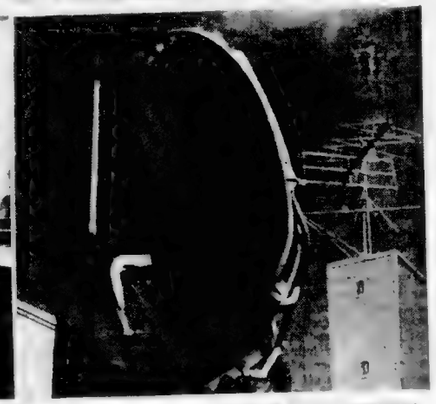
Traffic Control, the Eyes of Radar, And the Efforts of the Engineers

By JOHN SHAW

MAKING THE AIR WORLD

RECENT unexplained and tragic loss of a TCA North Star airliner with 62 souls aboard notwithstanding, flying is no longer a really hazardous adventure. The science has come a long way in the past 25 years. A quarter-century ago it might have been classified as dangerous. Today it is swift and sure.

These young men are learning the business of control, more and more important as air traffic increases by leaps and bounds. In a control tower at Toronto they handle traffic as a part of their lesson. Like their counterparts on the highways, their chief concern is traffic safety.



This basket-type radar antenna is made of metal, unaffected by cold or heat, and is the electric eye which watches all aircraft within the orbit of the alert control officer. Where visual landings or take-offs are impossible, the instruments take over. National Film Board photos.

THOUSANDS FLY DAILY IN COMFORT AND CONFIDENCE

Engineers are primarily safety-minded. But they haven't lost sight of the need for comfort in travel. Stewardesses, like this one, are highly trained to attend to every want, assuage every fear of their charges. Canada's airlines have a remarkable safety record.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE AUTOMOBILE, as chronicled in the press of this continent 60 years ago, was something of a challenge to progressive people in the growing communities of the west. Victoria was no exception.

The unthinking were already taking for granted, in the 1890's, such marvels as the telephone, electric light and the street railway system already operating here.

Man who built first X-ray for Royal Jubilee Hospital also participated in early introduction of automobiles here. Robert Hutchison was a bit of a genius.

Ballerina Believes In Natural Makeup

Beautiful ballerina Nina Novak who will appear here with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo has been in the ballet all of her life. Raised in the backstage atmosphere of European opera houses and now one of the world's leading ballerinas, she early became familiar with the [illegible] of theatrical make-up. Perhaps this is the reason she is such a firm believer in the completely natural, even understated and demure makeup for the street and her private life.

Miss Novak believes, however, that there are some make-up techniques of the theatre that would prove helpful to everyone. The continual lubrication of the skin with heavy creams at night keeps a dancer's skin soft and fine, and she suggests that instead of putting creams on the face at night, to try using them in the morning while doing the household chores as the physical activity warms the skin and the oils penetrate more deeply.

A theatrical make-up technique which creates a natural and beautiful mouth is easy for anyone to use. Miss Novak points out that every person has his own individually shaped mouth and lips and to stay away from some arbitrary form only detracts from one's own beauty. Miss Novak says you can make a large mouth seem smaller or a small one larger, and make the lips fuller by [illegible] the lip. Concentrate the rouge on the two upper lips, leaving the lower lip free. Finish by blending the edges of the rouge with a finger tip.

Miss Novak will appear with all of the famous stars of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo for the last time at Royal Theatre, for one performance only, when it appears there at the popular prices of $2.50 per [illegible] on Friday, Jan. 25.

Simple Shirtwaist Has New Elegance

NEW YORK — An American [illegible] woman had a notable [illegible] that rose to the pinnacles of [illegible] fashion.

Established as the most popular Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo [illegible] since it all time as American [illegible] has noted a [illegible] per [illegible] Friday, Jan. 25.

Starting as a popular, inexpensive dress, the shirtwaist faithfully served as the housewife's standby for running down to the corner grocery store, or hanging out the wash. Then the shirtwaist was glorified in brocade, chiffon, and gold lame and went to town among the smartest cocktail dresses of the season.

This year the shirtwaist is back in silk resort dresses and play clothes prettier than ever and ready for a winter vacation.

Boyish in origin, but this year [illegible], feminine in mood, these dresses have been interpreted in pure silk for a look of relaxed elegance.

Skirts either straight or slim, or with softly folded pleats, combine with simple shirts, with the sleeves rounded and cuffed but remain true to the traditional classic lines.

Infinite variety can be achieved with these costumes by changes of accessories such as scarves and belts and, of course, these same shirts combine gleely with shorts and slacks. Slim linen skirts have been combined with dyed-to-match Italian silk shirts.

Straight, Jamaica-length shorts are manufactured for a slim, [illegible] line.

Sportswear play suits appear to silk [illegible] textured cottons in sunny shades of gold and orange.

Professor Gives Talk On B.C.

Professor S. Pettit of Victoria College was guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Jaycettes Wednesday evening.

He spoke of the early history of British Columbia and the Centennial telling of events in 1858 and of James Douglas, Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie and Colonel Moody.

President Betty Turner presided at the meeting at which it was announced that play in the bridge tournament will begin Monday, Jan. 21. Registration forms for the tournament are still available.

Jaycee Alan Wilson introduced Isobel Dahl and Mary Rawnsley who gave demonstration addresses. New members Bernice Dyson and Pat Buchan were welcomed.

The treasurer reported a bank balance of $[illegible]. Reports on the welfare family, trade unions club and Sunshine Camp were received.

Dress Up Franks For Hearty Dish

For a hearty family meal and one that does wonders for our budget, nothing can beat frankfurters and sauerkraut. The flavor combination is one that appeals to youngsters and grown-ups alike and is nutritionally sound too.

You'll be especially popular [illegible] this favorite dish just as does any food that lends itself to dressing up and here are two versions to try.

Franks and sauerkraut are a family favorite—they'll be even more appreciated if you try tricking them up a bit. Here sauerkraut, combined with cheese and chives, is baked in a ring mold. Frankfurters go in the centre, and a tomato sauce is served on the side.

BAKED KRAUT RING WITH FRANKFURTERS

This one's as attractive to look at as it's good to eat. The sauerkraut is shaped and baked in a ring mold.

Open a No. 2½ can of sauerkraut and drain. Save the liquid. Place sauerkraut in a ring glass casserole. Combine sauerkraut with 2 tablespoons of melted butter or margarine, a cup of grated processed Canadian cheese and a tablespoon of chopped chives. Press mixture into an oiled 1-quart ring mold.

Cut 4 to 6 frankfurters cross wise into quarters, place in a greased baking dish. Place sauerkraut ring and frankfurters in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 20 minutes. Unmold sauerkraut ring on a hot platter and place frankfurters in the center.

Serve with a sauce poured over the frankfurters. Make this way: Combine one tablespoon each of cornstarch and tomato sauce, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 2 teaspoons parsley and ½ cup water. Cook over low heat for five minutes.

SNAPPY KRAUT AND FRANKFURTERS

Sauerkraut seasonings give this dish distinction. Top the slices of bacon over low heat until crisp; drain on absorbent paper. Add ½ cup fine-chopped onions and 1 small clove of garlic fine-chopped to bacon drippings; cook until browned. Add drained contents of one No. 2½ can sauerkraut and 1 pound of [illegible] and set things [illegible] for 15 minutes or 20 minutes. Stir [illegible] through. Add 1 tablespoon parsley, 1 teaspoon grated onion and seasoning, 1 teaspoon salt, [illegible] teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon grated horseradish.

Old Chateau Tourist Heaven

BRETEUIL, France—Except for the chrome tables and beach umbrellas the decor at the Chateau de Breteuil here strikes tourists as the kind that might have been modish during the Middle Ages.

It was, according to the best authorities, but relatively few Americans are ever around to give Breteuil a second look. The fare is plain, the service slow, and the rooms are small and spartan. Breteuil's [illegible] is not for everyone.

Iron Sands, Oil Sands May Give Up Wealth

Technical Puzzles May Be Solved

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The tar sands of Athabaska and the black sands of the Queen Charlotte Islands are back in the news again.

Both have been known for years, but until recently efforts to put them economically to use have not been encouraging.

Now a group of oil companies headed by Royalite, believes it can do something with the tar sands which are believed to contain the world's largest reserves of oil.

Across simultaneously the B.C. government, which vetoed staking of iron ore claims five years ago, announced it would consider opening the tar sands as the black sands of Graham Island in the Queen Charlottes are concerned.

These sands have for many years excited the interest of gold placer miners, for apart from their content of low-grade iron ore, they contain a fair amount of gold.

But one way and another the gold experts found it was not an easy separation and that operations could not be made economically.

Prospector Stopped

Great Drifts Formed

The sands formed as a result of erosion from a by-gone age, have been pounded by the storms of the north Pacific, and the mineralized particles, being heavier than the lighter colored sand, have formed into great drifts on the beaches.

The land in the area is [illegible] treed but mostly barren and the government will give its exploration permit to the firm willing to undertake an exploration and drill program in the area.

"No one knows yet how much ore there may be until considerable work is done, and that is what the government wants to find out," said Dr. Walker.

One of the big physical factors in favor of the area is that the ore would be convenient to tide water, and in Masset Inlet is the west [illegible] a sheltered harbor that [illegible] from storm periods [illegible] a month a resident.

Guns Outdated In Brawling For Pipelines

[illegible] that the competitors [illegible] such as for these [illegible] public utilities should be [illegible] courteous!

The gunplay that went with the old gold rush days has been supplanted by a high-level diplomacy, high pressure selling and even intrigue on a multidrama scale.

It seems fairly obvious that the various licensing authorities will not sanction two major pipelines from the same field, and the indications are that Savanna Creek may be the centre of another battle of the pipeline magnates.

The Car Corner

By J. T. Jones

She's a Spine-Tingler!

The crisp crackle of a Blood-red Lancia is a thing to tingle the spine of anyone such as I whose soul has cogs on it.

The car is a composed of sensations: the press and scream of acceleration, the clarp of tires on a bumpy corner, the whine of straight a pressed steel steering wheel, a where tachometer needle wiping around a black dial, the start of a fast down shift, the sharp blended smell of warm leather, cold wind and hot exhaust.

I suppose there are many to whom all this means nothing. I feel sorry for them. (I feel sorry for me, too. I haven't got $4,000 to buy this gem.)

* * *

The Lancia Aurelia Gran Turismo 2 [illegible] a [illegible] somewhat bigger than the [illegible] is [illegible] of the latter and [illegible] without being [illegible]

[illegible] cast iron V-6 engine made almost entirely of aluminum including the bearings.

Unlike the usual V-8 design, in which the crankshaft has four throws with two connecting rods check by jowl on each, the Lancia crank has six throws, arranged in a progressive spiral. There are four main bearings.

The result is a remarkable smoothness at all speeds. Although the tachometer has a [illegible] red warning line at 5,500 rpm, a limit imposed by the positive operation of the inclined overhead valves, the bottom end of the Lancia engine could take far more than that. Horsepower rating is 110, slightly less than the car [illegible]

Chassis layout is unique at the front and unusual at the back. Front suspension features a solid beam axle bolted to the frame. At each end, where the kingpins are [illegible] found as a cylindrical [illegible] composed of [illegible] steering knuckles and a long [illegible] which the steering knuckles slide up and down.

The rear suspension is something fairly new for Lancia, which for years used a swing axle type of independent suspension, with coil springs.

Now it has a De Dion layout, meaning that the wheels are solidly connected by a [illegible] around the differential, which is fixed to the car's frame. Short axles with a universal joint at each end carry power to the wheels.

The big finned rear brakes are mounted at the inner ends of these axles, right up against the differential housing and don't bounce up and down with the wheels. Springs are the familiar semi-elliptic leaf type.

All this is admittedly more complicated than the arrangement to be found under say, a Ford. What's it all for?

Well, it's aimed at that old devil, unsprung weight. The ride and roadholding both benefit greatly from any lightening of the parts of the car that move up and down with the wheels. With the weight of [illegible] differential gears (really heavy) and brakes taken away, the improvement is enormous.

The Lancia has that happy Italian faculty for sticking to the worst corners, settling into sweeping bends and snapping through the tight ones. Even so, its ride is smooth and gentle. The brakes are powerful, of course. No road holds any worries for this car.

* * *

A four-speed transmission is combined with one gear with the differential and mounted approximately under the back seat. Knowing the amount of linkage involved, I was amazed at the crispness of the column-mounted gear lever—nearly on a par with the direct-acting lever of an MG TD, for instance.

I have seen only one car whose craftsmanship and fit and finish I would be considered even fractionally better than the Lancia. That was a $16,000 Rolls-Royce.

* * *

This Lancia came to Victoria the way many rich and rare cars do. H. T. Matson brought it in. Now he has sold it and is leaving again. I hate to see it go.

They Know What They Like

Seven-Week Session Likely

Premier Bennett said yesterday he expects the provincial legislature will sit for about seven weeks this year. Legislature opens Feb. 7.

The premier said he did not anticipate many night sessions this year and that the government would not try to pressure legislation through the House.

It is likely, however, that [illegible] will [illegible] night sittings as the premier is a great believer in allowing the public to watch the government in action.

The premier said two new members would move and second the [illegible] to the Throne [illegible] will [illegible] them in the next few days.

Last Word in Buildings

Royal Bank Branch Moves Half a Block, Half a Century

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The Royal Bank's Douglas Street branch in Victoria is moving tomorrow—less than half a block in distance and nearly half a century in time.

The new building on the corner of Douglas and Pandora is the last word in modern bank buildings. It contrasts not only with its old, drab, one-storey predecessor, but also with most of the other staid, stone-carved bank buildings in the city.

[illegible]

The branch is one of five Royal Banks in the Greater Victoria area.

"We have felt the need of new quarters for some time," said Mr. Wilde. "We were very pleased with the new site to provide [illegible] customers [illegible] improved surroundings."

[illegible] of its customers are Chinese.

SPEAK CANTONESE

The bank employs one [illegible] who speaks Cantonese.

[illegible] Cantonese [illegible] in the Chinese community, said Mr. Wilde.

The Chinese use the bank for remitting funds to their families in China, Hong Kong and elsewhere, and they do their local business there, too. The bank expects they will remain as customers in the new quarters.

31A POULTRY HATCHING EGGS, ETC.

Kimberchiks Have a Record for Outstanding Performance
During the 8 years ending with 1955 Kimberchiks entered in the California Official Random Sample Laying Test averaged 240 eggs per bird based on the number of pullets at one week of age
91.6% liability to about 18 months.
$2.00 income over feed costs
Although this five year record indicates very fine breeding, the real worth of Kimberchiks is how they perform on commercial poultry farms.
Because of their large early egg size, high production and good livability, Kimberchiks may well be the answer to more profitable operation for you. That's why we suggest you start some K-127 Kimberchiks and compare them under your own farm conditions with the birds you have previously raised. For available dates and further information, write to

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

It may be a long time before another Seattle station beams into Victoria, on channel 7.

During a trip to Seattle last week, this writer again heard the prediction that KIRO, the CBS radio station, will win the channel (which means, incidentally, that CBS shows will be shifted to channel 7 from channel 11, the latter [illegible] independent.)

It's also rumored strongly that KVI, Tacoma, strongest competition to KIRO, is not giving up.

The word is that if KIRO wins, KVI will go to court on the least possible legal grounds delaying channel 7 for months or years.

While in Seattle, this writer was fortunate enough to be given a special screening of Kingdom of the Sea in color at channel 4. It debuts Tuesday (and has been on channel 12 at 7.30 p.m. Sunday for some weeks) but not in color, unfortunately. This is the best of underwater shows—photography is superb.

Met ex-Victoria radioman Jack Tregellas at KING. He passes along greetings to his friends.

Ingrid Bergman appears "live" in the United States for the first time in years, on the Steve Allen show (channel 4, 8 p.m.)

Another highlight today is Odyssey, which goes "live" under water off Florida to look for more than $68,000,000 worth of Spanish treasure sunk in 1733 (channels 11 and 12, 1 p.m.).

Gerald McBoing-Boing's parents learn how to translate his sounds into words (channels 11 and 12, 2.30 p.m.); Omnibus does "Lee at Gettysburg" in blank verse (channel 5, 9 p.m.); a good old movie is "Four Jills in a Jeep" (channel 12, 10.35).

TV BITS: Last Word, the Sunday morning panel show on languages, drew what CBS calls "an unprecedented" 2,413 letters after its recent premiere. It's on channels 11 and 12 at 11.30 a.m., and authoress Mary McCarthy is on the show today. . . . Coming up on King's Command Performance in the next two weeks are "Kissing Bandit," with Frank Sinatra, "Garden of Allah," "The Great Ziegfeld" . . . Those two hidden faces on the Command Performance picture have been identified as Greer Garson and Mickey Rooney, if anybody other than this column cared.

"Will Lodge answer Shepilov? Will Romania walk out? And what about Nasser? For the answers to these and other questions, tune in . . ."

SUNDAY, JAN 20

Today's quotation: "All I have seen teaches me to trust the Creator for all I have not seen" —Emerson

Sunday for everyone: Try for increased progress and gains today, as well as for pleasures and relaxation. Take stock of your financial status: overcome obstacles, benefit through the resources or contacts at your disposal.

Look for Your Birthdate and Birthsign Below

March 21 to April 19 (Aries) Seek co-operation; be cordial to those whom you meet. Bestow or request favors.

April 20 to May 20 (Taurus)—Find release from stress. Hit upon ways of being useful. Enjoy home, visitors.

[illegible] others. Spend a happy day with dear ones, or promote creative or executive matters.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer) Make plans for your security and that of your family. Welcome guests or take your ease at home.

July 23 to Aug 22 (Leo) Let kinfolk, persons who live nearby help to institute a round of fun, congeniality.

Aug 23 to Sept 22 (Virgo) Buy or sell, attend to financial interests. Look forward to a brightening picture.

Sept 23 to Oct 22 (Libra) Others look to you for direction; put your personality and best qualities on display.

Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 (Scorpio) Spend a relaxing, peaceful day. Be kind, thoughtful toward those less fortunate. Economize.

Nov 22 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius) Let good cheer, congeniality mark the day. See friends, associates, have a good time.

Dec. 22 to Jan 19 (Capricorn) Make this a day for advancing ambitions, prestige and credit. Gratify superiors, parents.

Jan 20 to Feb 18 (Aquarius) Find pleasure in the prospects that lie ahead. Map your program; have confidence within reason.

Feb 19 to March 20 (Pisces) Give way to inclination for privacy, relaxation. Attend to accounts and mutual finances.

Planning ahead: Good for entertaining, sociability, etc. January 20, 23, 26, 27, 28, 31.

Dogs May Patrol Museum

Dr. V. B. Meen, of the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto, opens a case to show police where $50,000 worth of gold and diamonds were stolen. Thieves worked quietly, removing heavy gold ore samples and dragging them across floor in a sack. They left no fingerprints. Police have advised museum officials to allow the museum guards to have dogs with them to detect thieves.—(CPC)

Fairfield Troop Challenges Windsor Park

By LT.-COL. REGINALD GIRARD
District Commissioner
Victoria District

Badge secretaries for groups in Oak Bay area met on Wednesday. All area groups sent members.

Mr. H. M. Dale, district badge secretary, Mr. M. F. Connor, group contact committee and Executive Commissioner R. Milks explained the proposed organization. Preliminary steps were undertaken to find badge examiners for the area.

The group will meet again in a month to complete arrangements.

On Wednesday group committee chairmen and group badge secretaries in the Victoria area will meet and organize. All groups have been notified.

A challenge has been given and accepted between two troops in the Victoria district.

Fairfield troop challenges Windsor Park troop to an orienting competition on Sunday, Jan. 27.

Windsor Park troop took up the challenge and on Monday night raided Fairfield troop and left an acceptance with a scalp attached. This scalp was reputed to be from the last troop that challenged them. Competition will start at John Dean Park in the afternoon.

Members of the district staff met on Thursday evening at Scout headquarters to plan activities and visits for the coming year. Leaders were assigned areas and given handbooks on the role of the district staff. Plans are being laid for a church parade on February 17 of leaders and Rovers.

Patrol Leaders Albert Bowden and John Cox of Marigold troop camped last weekend in the Highlands area. Both Scouts are working on part of their first class badge and used the trip to gain experience in camping, hiking and cooking.

Forms have been mailed to all Scoutmasters and assistants in the area for the Scout preliminary training course to be held on Jan. 31 and Feb. 2 and 3. It is hoped that all Scouters will make an attempt to take this course. Members of group committees will also be welcomed.

Cubs and Scouts in Fairfield group are busily preparing for their annual concert, to be held at the Church of Our Lord on Feb. 22. An invitation is issued to all to make this, the 100th anniversary of the birth of the founder of Scouting, Lord Baden-Powell, a true Scout night. In addition, the Fairfield-B. Park will hold a parents' night on March 19.

GANGES — Varied entertainment was provided at the annual party of the Ganges Choral Group in the parish hall.

The choral group sang, Joseph Bates delivered a humorous monologue and Archdeacon G. H. Holmes sang a solo.

Refreshments were arranged by Mrs. F. H. Baker.

Willows group reports that a ladies' auxiliary was formed at a meeting of mothers Friday night. The auxiliary will assist group committee in seeing that the boys receive good Cubbing and Scouting. By helping mothers to understand the aims and principles of Scouting it helps the group. St. Columba group is also considering forming a ladies' auxiliary.

* * *

The district executive will meet at Scout headquarters, 1034 Johnson Street on Thursday at 8 p.m. Members will be assigned to committees for the coming year and a full attendance is desired.

Obituaries

Simpson Funeral Tuesday

Funeral services will be held Tuesday for Mrs. Ermyntrude Simpson, 72, who died Friday night in Royal Jubilee Hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Simpson's husband, George Y. Simpson, who died four years ago, was a direct descendant of Sir George Simpson, Hudson's Bay Co. and Rupert's Land governor from 1825 to 1830.

Born in Gisbourn, N.Z., Mrs. Simpson moved to Victoria with her family in 1912.

Mrs. Simpson, who lived at 1310 Dallas, was always proud that in 1912 she became one of the first women in the city to learn to drive a car.

Surviving are three sons, George, Victoria; Owen, Alert Bay, and David, Vancouver, and six grandchildren.

Rev. Canon F. Pike will conduct funeral services from St. Luke's Church at 3 p.m. Tuesday. Cremation will follow.

E. S. Baylis

Funeral services for Edward Septimus Baylis, 21 Midwood Road, a Victoria accountant who died Friday, will be held at 2.45 p.m. Tuesday from McCall Bros. funeral home, with Canon S. J. Wickens officiating. Cremation will follow.

Born in Stourport, England, Mr. Baylis played international hockey in England and was an ardent tennis player.

He moved to Canada in 1906. During the First World War he served with the 7th Battalion, CEF.

He is survived by his widow and two sons, John P. E., at home, and Denbigh H., 268 View Royal Avenue.

North Saanich Area Elects Fire Trustees

SIDNEY — Five trustees have been elected for the unorganized section of the newly-formed North Saanich fire protection district.

The area has been divided into four zones with one trustee from each, the fifth trustee to represent the district at large.

Jack Gibbs and F. S. Howard were elected trustees for two years; J. J. Woods and P. Earnshaw, one year. Cmdr. F. B. Leigh was named trustee-at-large.

The trustees will meet soon with Sidney village commission to work out an agreement on joint management of the Sidney and North Saanich volunteer fire department. It has been suggested that unorganized North Saanich have three members and the village two on a governing committee.

A tax of one mill will raise about $5,000 annually, sufficient for present needs, officials estimated.

Mrs. Booth Heads Group

GANGES — Mrs. Ernie Booth was elected president of the women's auxiliary to the Salt Spring Island branch of the Canadian Legion.

Others elected:

First vice-president, Mrs. Peter Cartwright; second vice-president, Mrs. R. Gibbs; secretary, Mrs. Lee Dolman; treasurer, Mrs. D. F. Winteringham; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. I. B. Devine; executive committee, Mrs. B. C. Greenhough, Mrs. Jack C. Smith, Mrs. W. F. Thorburn, Mrs. Brian Williams, Mrs. I. H. Williams and Mrs. G. S. Humphreys.

'Dear Doctor Adams'

'They're Saying Awful Things'

By EDDY GILMORE

EASTBOURNE, England—The melodic strains of Franz Lehar's "Merry Widow" echoed across the vast palm court of the Grand Hotel.

A white-haired, elegant old lady fingered her sparkling emerald necklace and croaked in a stage whisper above a dainty tea cup:

"It's simply dreadful the things they're saying about dear Dr. Adams."

[illegible] friend except that she wore a thick rope of costly pearls instead of emeralds, nodded her snowy, coiffeured head.

"Awful, my dear Lady Blanche, just awful. I've had such a sweet note from the doctor saying he'd see me soon."

The two rich and widowed old souls were typical of Eastbourne, a prim seaside resort where elderly people with big money come to live out their last years in the scant sun of the English Channel.

One in every four residents of Eastbourne is over 65. The huge proportion of aged makes its death rate the highest in England — 15 to the rest of Britain's 11 out of every 1,000 population.

Most of Eastbourne's residents are wealthy. [illegible] died. Some are childless. Others have been packed off here by relatives too busy to bother with them.

Eastbourne is little changed since the starchy days of Queen Victoria. Shops are still barred from the Grand Parade, that elegant seafront promenade which supports two marble statues of the eighth Duke of Devonshire. Hawkers of candy and other such crass items of commerce, are not allowed on the seafront, where Bikini bathing suits are as rare as scandal.

Into this highly respectable community came a young Irish doctor 34 years ago. Born of poor Belfast parents, he worked his way through college and journeyed to Eastbourne, where there's always room for another doctor.

[illegible] now 57, red-faced, with a neck like a bull, and a voice as soft as a summer breeze.

Known by many patients as "Dr. Adams" or "Dr. John," and by constables as "Old Bodkin," he worked up a large practice and a reputation as a medic never too busy to see a sufferer.

. . . soft summer voice

Insects Lunch On Fat of Land

KAMPALA, Uganda (UP)—Volunteer "human baits" are sitting in treetops inviting mosquitoes to bite them, scientists reported yesterday.

Two-man teams of Africans, stripped to the waist, spend four-hour shifts catching the mosquitoes which land on each other. The operation is part of a study of diseases by the East African Virus Research Institute.

During one 40-day period, more than 31,000 mosquitoes were caught.

Caribou Being Wiped Out

'Starvation Belt' Eskimo Menace

By ERIC DOWNTON
North American Newspaper Alliance

WINNIPEG — Nomadic Canadian Eskimos live in the shadow of starvation, a danger increasing as the caribou herds which provide their food continue to dwindle alarmingly.

A potential Eskimo "starvation belt" stretches 1,000 miles westward from Hudson Bay to the Mackenzie River delta, along the Arctic Circle. This is because during the past six years the great caribou herds have been reduced by 60 per cent. Indiscriminate slaughter by Eskimos and Indians, disease, wolves, the northward march of civilization —such factors are decimating once-mighty herds.

Efforts are being made to reduce the wholesale and wasteful slaughter of migrating caribou by Eskimos and Indians and to trace causes of disease. If the present rate of decline goes on it is feared that the sad story of the American buffalo will be repeated and the caribou brought to the brink of extinction.

Dr. A. W. F. Banfield, Canada's senior mammalogist, reports that in 1949 the caribou population was estimated to be 670,000 animals between Hudson Bay and the Mackenzie Valley. The annual crop of calves was thought to be about 145,000 and the annual kill — by Eskimos, Indians and white hunters — about 100,000. Wolves and disease killed off about another 68,000 yearly.

Latest survey results are termed "alarming" by Dr. Banfield. The present caribou population appears to be under 260,000.

As the caribou provides him with food, clothing and materials for shelter and implements, this startling drop in numbers spells tragedy for the interior Eskimo.

B.C. Foresters Set Meeting

The ninth annual meeting of the B.C. Registered Foresters' Association will be held in the Empress Hotel Feb. 1. Meeting will discuss forestry practices and professional ethics. Officers for 1957 will be elected and a prominent lumberman will be chosen as the speaker.

Ketty of RCAF

Link with Canada Kept by Visitor

A Danish girl who left Victoria in 1954 after a two-year stay is now stationed with the RCAF in Metz, France.

Ketty Edwards has travelled a long way since she left here after working with the B.C. Electric as a clerk and the Hudson's Bay Co. as a hairdresser.

After seven weeks' illness, during which she stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Penzer, 2199 Lansdowne Road, LAW Edwards moved to Montreal where she joined the RCAF.

She was stationed at St. Johns, Que., and Gimli, Man., before transferring overseas.

Training she took in stenography here helped Ketty get her present job as a clerk accountant with the RCAF in Metz.

FACTS OF LIFE

DO RABBITS SWIM?

MOST OF THEM DO IF THROWN OR FORCED INTO THE WATER. THE SWAMP RABBIT OF THE SOUTH AND THE ARCTIC HARE ARE VERY GOOD SWIMMERS.

Another factor to remember: You can save both time and money by going to Heaney's for light and heavy hauling.

HEANEY'S

HEARING IMPROVED

. . . thousands report. Blessed relief from years of suffering from poor hearing and miserable ear noises, caused by catarrh of the head! That's what these folks (many past 70) reported after using our simple Elmo Palliative HOME TREATMENT. This may be the answer to your prayer. Nothing to wear. Here are SOME of the symptoms that may likely go with your catarrhal deafness and ear noises: Mucus dropping in throat. Head feels stopped up by mucus. Mucus in nose or throat every day. Hear — but don't understand words. Hear better on clear days — worse on rainy days, or with a cold. Ear noises like crickets, bells, whistles, clicking or escaping steam or many other.

If your condition is caused by catarrh of the head, you, too, may likely enjoy such wonderful relief as many others have reported during our past 18 years. WRITE TODAY FOR PROOF OF RELIEF AND 30 DAY TRIAL OFFER.
